Hoover and Smith.
Joan of Arc's Day.
To Chain the Chain Stores.
Mr. Raskob and the Robin.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

(Copyright, 1928.)

SECRETARY MELLON says, referring to the Presidency, "Mr. Hoover seems to come closest to the standard that we have set for this high office."

THOSE few words have caused political talk to boil over. Mr. Mellon controls the Pennsylvania delegation that could make Hoover's nomination practically certain.

Mr. Mellon, one of the men best suited for the Presidency, one that would have had enthusiastic support, seems to withdraw his own name from consideration. Millions will regret this.

NO MAN has a following greater than Mr. Mellon's, among serious American business men. His Hoover indorsement will kill off much hostility to Hoover among certain Wall street men. Their standard is money. Mellon has it—Ten and a hundred times what the average "Rich Mellon critic" has.

They will conclude that Hoover is good enough for them, if good enough for Mellon.

SOME, that do not know Mr. Mellon, will call his statement the first step toward a seat on the Hoover band wagon. Mr. Mellon needs no man's good will, or assistance.

CLOSE friends that know how earnestly Mellon hoped for Coolidge's acceptance of a second election, will conclude that he has abandoned that hope. President Coolidge would have been his first choice.

REPUBLICAN victory Mr. Mellon takes for granted and Gov. Smith, who does not deceive himself, knows that it will not be easy to beat prosperity, and seven million plurality.

SOME that planned to beat Hoover with a combination "at the proper moment" seem to have let that moment slip by. It is hard to turn an avalanche, as Gov. Smith's opponents know.

HOOVER AND SMITH is a reasonably safe answer to the political question of the day.

THIS is Joan of Arc's Day, and representative of those most active in burning her alive will make the greatest fuss over her, now that she is a memory.

Flowers will decorate Fremlet's poor Statue of Joan in the Rue de Rivoli. And French Royalists will take possession of her memory, forgetting how the miserable French King left her to be murdered.

GOVERNMENT investigates chain stores to protect small "independent merchants."

No plan to discourage useful efficiency in favor of the other thing will go far.

IT is alleged that chain stores "take money out of the community." Big automobile makers do that also, and packers, millers, readymade clothing men.

The important community is THE UNITED STATES. Whatever is good for THE UNITED STATES is good for each community. Efficient retailing means a more valuable dollar and greater REAL prosperity.

JOHN J. RASKOB, boss of General Motors' finances, returns on the Italian ship Roma as optimistic as a robin after a shower. Showers bring the worms to the surface.

HE says there is no danger of automobile overproduction, and there is none, if you make the right car at the right price. Yearly replacement, says Mr. Raskob, calls for 5,000,000 new cars, which confirms Henry Ford's estimate.

THE country has 24,000,000 cars in use now, and ought to have 40,000,000 to make this a nation of "two-car families."

With only 25,000,000 cars in use and only 5,000,000 new cars a year each car would have to run five years.

High-spirited Americans, making and spending rapidly, could not stand that slow pace. As well expect an American woman to let a hat last five years.

HOW little the Chinese worried about the war. How little our so-called civilization frets as it reads, "Waves of Chinese mowed down by Japanese machine guns" or "Japanese rained shells two days on Chinese before expelling them from Tsinan."

JAPAN will establish a sort of Asiatic Monroe Doctrine, and run it. Also she will get what she wants. One thing she wants is no Communism, Bolshevism or other anti-capitalistic frenzy in China. And Europe's great nations that want money from Chinese trade will say:

"Heaven bless you, Japan, go ahead."

What about the League of Nations? That is supposed to prevent only wars that the big leaguers don't want.

POOR old Job's prosperity depended on the numbers of camels, sheep and asses he owned.

Russian wealth varied with the number of horses and serfs. Our wealth varies with the amount of electric power used.

WHEN you read that last month 1 per cent more power was used than the month before, and 2.2 per cent more than in April, 1927, you know that the country is going ahead.

The South, that once depended on slave power, now pushes ahead with electricity and steam for slaves. That is better and more profitable.

MRS. FAYETTE J. TYRELL

When the enormity of his crime dawned upon him, Attorney Fayette J. Tyrell dashed to his wife's side. There he poured out his story of the shooting of Philip Clark in the auditorium of the little Munhall church, and there he was arrested for the crime. Today, Mrs. Tyrell came downtown and had an hour's talk with her husband before he was committed to jail, formally charged with murder. She is the mother of six children.

BALLOT PROBERS SNARE 10

The election fraud dragnet caught two more election boards in its meshes today. On information provided by the Allegheny County Elections Associations, District Attorney S. H. Gardner ordered informations preferred before Alderman Thomas A. Flanigan against members of the Second District, Twentieth Ward, and of the Twenty-first District, Twenty-first Ward.

The Twentieth Ward board, charged with irregularities at the last September primaries, includes Thomas Rourke, John Wachter, Thomas Davin, Minnie Kessler and Mary Shanning.

The Twenty-first Ward board, charged with fraud at the general election in November, comprises Thomas E. Clarty, William Hindes, Thomas Schmidtetter, Thomas J. Walsh and Harold J. Lorey.

SUNDAY SCHOOL HEAD KILLS CLIENT'S MATE IN MUNHALL CHURCH

Wife's Divorce Suit Accuses Clark of Cruelty—Loved Another, His Reply

"She said she had another sweetheart she loved better."

So Philip F. Clark, slain Homestead church worker averred in his answer to a divorce suit instituted by his wife, Hazel Clark, last September.

The name of the "other man" was not disclosed in the divorce papers, filed by Clark, whose allegation is set forth in the following language:

"That libellant scratched, hit and kicked the respondent and asserted she was working to save money so as to be able to leave him, as she was tired of living with him and had another sweetheart that she loved better than the respondent."

CONSTANT BICKERING

The divorce papers bristle with charges and counter-charges, revealing bickering and strife as the continual lot of the Clarks in their married life. On one occasion Clark threatened to kill her, the wife charged.

Clark averred his wife ran up bills to such an extent he was Self-Defense Plea Expected—Says Choir Singer's Husband Made Threats.

In the presence of his wife, Mrs. Hazel Clark, choir singer, and their son, Philip F. Clark, 36, was shot down in the First Christian Church, Munhall, by Attorney Fayette J. Tyrell, Sunday school superintendent for 11 years, as the church filled with worshipers Sunday.

Tyrell, 49, counsel for Mrs. Clark in her divorce action, which was ended when Tyrell fired three shots from an automatic pistol into Clark's body, probably will plead self-defense, it was indicated today.

Tyrell today was formally committed to jail on a murder charge, after talking with his wife for an hour. He declined to make any statement regarding the killing.

Clark had notified friends that he was going to church yesterday to complain to church officials about Tyrell's friendship with Mrs. Clark. Tyrell rushed from the pulpit, drew a revolver and in the presence of 50 members of the congregation killed Clark.

WIFE, SON NEARBY

The shooting occurred within 30 feet of Mrs. Clark, who immediately left with her son, without viewing the body of her husband.

County Detective Michael McDermott, who interrogated Mrs. Clark at her home, said Mrs. Clark declared her relations with Tyrell were purely business, that she had visited him only on legal matters. She said her husband had been circulating untrue reports about her, according to McDermott.

Mrs. Tyrell today denied that Mrs. Clark had been employed by her husband. Mrs. Clark was employed by an insurance company with offices in Oakland, it was stated at her home. This was confirmed at the office of the company today.

Tyrell was constantly guarded by private detectives, it was revealed at the attorney's Pittsburgh office today. The guard usually accompanied him at night, particularly when Tyrell visited his Homestead office. Tyrell's business associates said that Clark had frequently threatened the attorney.

Clark resided at 202 Ann street, Homestead, and Tyrell lived with his wife and six children in Lincoln place.

After the shooting, the slayer calmly looked around, muttered something about "finishing" himself and strode down the church aisle to the door. He entered his automobile and drove to his home, where Constable W. O. Finley found him with his wife and six children about an hour later.

The constable placed the attorney under arrest and took him to the Munhall police station, following which he was turned over to county detectives on a charge of murder.

After a restless night in the county jail, Tyrell ate sparingly today and prepared for his interro-

COAL PROBE REOPENS; P. R. R. DEMANDS PROOF

By MAX HENRICI,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—Judge Clarence B. Heiserman, vice president and general counsel of the Pennsylvania Railroad, dramatically demanded, at a hearing held today by the Senate Insterstate Commerce Committee in its investigation of the coal strike, that the United Mine Workers either produce evidence in support of their charge of criminal conspiracy against the Pennsylvania or retract it.

Judge Heiserman quoted from a statement made by George W. Lewis, legislative representative of the United Mine Workers, in which he asserted the Pennsylvania stood 60 per cent of the loss sustained by coal operators in the Shady Side, Ohio, district, who broke with the union and operated open shop.

The railroad attorney declared that if the charge were true the Pennsylvania would be liable to a huge fine and all of its officers and employes involved in the matter could be sent to the penitentiary. He insisted, therefore, that the accusation be withdrawn or that Lewis and Philip Murray, international vice-president of the union, be compelled by the committee to disclose the source of the information on which the charge was based.

TRIVIAL, SAYS LEWIS

John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers and a brother of George W. Lewis, said the charge was "an inconsequential matter," as compared with the general commercial practice of the Pennsylvania and allied railroads in beating down the price of coal and compelling operators to sell it at less than cost, with resultant confiscation of their capital and their miners' wages." However, Lewis added, the union would check up on the matter.

rates had opened negotiations with the Robins to exchange Gooch, Hill and Harris to the Robins for Petty and an unnamed catcher.

The Pirate treasurer denied that a deal was hanging fire.

"No overtures have been made to us by the Pirates," Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Dodgers, informed The Sun-Tele when interviewed at the Hotel Schenley this morning. "However, we are in the market for a trade and are willing to listen to any reasonable offers. I will have to get a lot for Petty, for the reason if I were to trade him for less than he is worth it would be like putting a premium on misconduct.

"I don't need any catchers or first basemen, as I have three good receivers and four men capable of playing the initial sack in Bressler, Herman, Bissonnette and Hendrick."

DOAK TO HURL

Knoxville Bill Doak, a Pittsburgh native and veteran pitcher of the National League, will oppose the Pirates in the second game of the series with the Dodgers at Forbes Field this afternoon.

Manager Bush announced today that Clyde Barnhart will replace Pete Scott in left field.

The Pirates arrived back home this morning, accompanied by the Brooklyn team, after having suffered an 8 to 5 setback at the hands of the Robins yesterday at Brooklyn. Seven errors on the part of the Pirates aided the Robins materially in scoring the triumph.

John Miljus will get the pitching assignment today, according to Manager Donie Bush. Burleigh Grimes went the entire distance at Brooklyn yesterday and was touched for 11 safe blows. Elliott and Clark, two southpaws, hurled for the Robins. The Pirates were held to seven hits.

DIFFER ON MELLON STAND

WASHINGTON, May 14.—(AP.)—As they indulged today in considerable speculation as to the real effect of Secretary Mellon's statement regarding the candidacy of Herbert Hoover for the Republican presidential nomination, managers of the Commerce Secretary's campaign, as well as his political foes, laid plans for a final drive to line up delegates to the Kansas City convention.

In the Democratic ranks there were signs of renewed activity on the part of the opposition to Gov. Smith of New York, whose friends contend he has the party's nomination almost within his grasp. The anti-Smith forces, for the moment turning their efforts toward strengthening the positions of a number of candidates in the field against him, looked chiefly to Southern states, where many delegates are still to be chosen, for support.

As to Secretary Mellon's attitude with reference to the Republican nomination, there was a wide range of forecasts as to what he and the Pennsylvania delegation would do at Kansas City four weeks hence.

In the Hoover camp there was jubilation. James W. Good, directing head of the Hoover campaign, who claims that 467 of the 545 delegates needed for nomination already are in the Commerce secretary's column, interpreted Mr. Mellon's statement that of the Republican presidential candidates Hoover "seems to come closest to the standard that we have set for this high office" as foreshadowing Hoover's nomination.

HOPE TO SWAY SOUTH

Others in the Hoover camp shared this optimism, insisting that although the 79 Pennsylvania delegates, at Mellon's request, remain uninstructed, they will swing to the Secretary of Commerce at Kansas City, clinching his nomination. They predicted that the Treasury Secretary's pronouncement would have nationwide effect, promoting a band wagon movement for Hoover in states where delegates, already chosen, are unpledged, and in those where selections still are to be made. The effect, they held, would be felt particularly in West Virginia, where on May 29 in the last Republican primary to be held, Hoover clashes with Senator Goff for that state's 19 delegates.

On the other hand, opponents of Hoover—senators who themselves are presidential candidates and admirers of Lowden, Dawes and others—argued that Mr. Mellon had not shown that at heart he was for his cabinet associate. They made much of the conviction that the Treasury head prefers Coolidge, Hughes or perhaps someone not yet in the field, and of his recommendation that the Pennsylvania delegation hold aloof from commitments until it reaches Kansas City.

TWO SOLDIERS KILLED AS AUTO HITS TRAIN

ABERDEEN, Md., May 14.—(AP.)—Two soldiers attached to the Chemical warfare service at Edgewood Arsenal were killed here yesterday when their automobile crashed into a Pennsylvania train bound from New York to Baltimore. Private Ernest W. Farran, of Keysville, Va., and Private Charles Curry of Altoona, Pa., were the men killed.

Clark's Mother Had Foreboding Of Sorrow

Philip Clark's mother had a premonition of sorrow yesterday and she warned her son to "keep out of trouble," she told newspapermen last night after her son had been killed in the First Christian Church, Munhall, by Attorney F. J. Tyrell of Lincoln place.

"When Philip told me he intended to bring charges against Tyrell, I asked him to be careful," the grieving mother, Mrs. P. J. Clark, Sr., of 202 Ann street, Homestead, said.

"Isn't this a sad 'Mothers' Day' for me?" she sobbed.

stopped on the street by creditors and asked to pay, that he was referred to by her relatives as a "boor" and a "slop" and an "intermeddling mother-in-law" made life miserable for him.

The Clarks were married January 15, 1917, and separated July 25, 1927. Mrs. Clark sued for divorce September 8, 1927, through her husband's slayer, Attorney F. J. Tyrell, on the grounds of cruelty and indignities. In November, Mrs. Clark filed a bill of particulars, to which answer was filed by her husband through Attorney I. Elmer Ecker. The case had not been heard.

CHARGES THREAT TO KILL

In a bill of particulars filed November 9, 1927, the wife avers her husband frequently told her to "go to hell," swore at her and on June 19, 1927, approached her with the threat "I'll kill you."

Clark "nagged and found fault continually about money and bills," the wife averred, resulting in frequent quarels and making life unpleasant.

Two days after her marriage, the wife sets forth, she returned to her employment, but soon afterward became ill and was removed to Homestead Hospital. Her husband seldom visited her, she said. She remained at the home of her mother three months after she left the hospital, she said.

Her husband nagged her and complained about his wife visiting her mother in the hospital following a serious operation, Mrs. Clark alleges. At the time her child was born, the wife says, her husband was unsympathetic and paid little attention to her.

Despite the fact that she asked him to remain with her, he left the house and she had to be cared for by members of her own family, the wife avers.

GAVE WIFE PAY ENVELOPE

Clark denied he swore or used abusive language toward his wife. His wife's mother and other members of her family, Clark averred, tried to persuade her to discontinue living with him and made life unpleasant by referring to him as a "Boor, a "Slop" and similar terms.

Frequently, Clark sets forth, he was stopped by persons with whom his wife had incurred debts and asked to settle, notwithstanding that he gave her his pay envelope each week, except a few dollars, which he retained.

Clark denied threatening to kill his wife, denied any abusive action, and averred his actions and attitude toward her were considerate at all times.

The husband declared in his answer he acquiesced in anything his wife proposed, even to "attending the theater and going into the society of other persons when he would have enjoyed a quiet evening at home."

OPPOSED WIFE WORKING

Clark denied his wife had to be taken to a hospital because of illness through working, as she had averred. He did not want her to work, he said. He made arrangements for an ambulance and a room at the hospital, and visited her and her mother when the latter was in the hospital, he said.

Regarding money matters, the husband averred he didn't nag his wife, but "had requested her not to incur bills and then deny incurring them." Claims for payment caused him great embarrassment, he said.

His wife's mother, with whom the Clarks lived in a jointly owned house, "interfered and intermeddled, causing trouble between him and his wife," Clark alleged. The mother, according to Clark, wanted the daughter to sell the house, divide the money and then have a separation between Clark and his wife.

Frank Artman, an uncle of Clark's wife, came to the Clark home and drank liquor he brought with him, causing Clark much embarrassment, he averred.

COAL PROBE IS REOPENED

secretary of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association, who back in the nineties was president for a year or two of the United Mine Workers, was to have been heard by the committee today. But Senator James E. Watson of Indiana, chairman, announced that Penna had fallen and broken his wrist and would be unable to come.

CALL FOR TAPLIN

Frank E. Taplin of Cleveland, dominating stockholder in the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, was to have been heard today. Senator Watson said the committee had been asked by Frederick C. Baird of Pittsburgh to call Taplin, to adduce "important facts" that Baird thought the committee should know. Telegrams summoning Taplin had met with no answer, the chairman mentioned, and he did not know if Taplin would come or not. He added that Baird had been notified that Taplin had not answered the message.

As neither Penna nor Taplin was on hand, the committee adjourned after a short session until tomorrow, when it is expected witnesses of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will deny various charges made against the railroad by the miners' union.

PROBE NEARLY FINISHED

Watson announced that Senator Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, who has attended the hearings more faithfully than any other member of the committee, would go to Rochester, Minn., today for an operation at the Mayo Brothers' Hospital for stricture of the intestine. Other members of the committee, Watson said, were busy with matters that prohibited their attendance at the hearings, and he himself would leave Washington at the end of this week and not be back before the adjournment of Congress, which is set for May 26.

It is exceedingly doubtful, he said, if the sub-committee on legislative proposals would hold hearings during the summer, because the residences of the members are widely scattered and all have expressed unwillingness to return to Washington for the purpose. Therefore, he said, an effort would have to be made to wind up the business this week.

There was a bare possibility, Watson suggested, that the subcommittee on legislation would hold a hearing at some central point such as St. Louis.

LEGISLATION DISCUSSED

It was learned today that informal conversations have been held by attorneys for the miners' union, attorneys for the coal operators' associations and the attorneys on the committee in reference to coal legislation. Special attention has been given to proposals to legalize combinations and selling pools.

Henry Warrum, of Indianapolis, chief counsel for the United Mine Workers, said the union desired nothing that would not be beneficial to the coal companies, since anything that promoted their prosperity would redound to the benefit of the miners, while, conversely, anything harmful to the operators' business was liable to react unfavorably on the miners. Nevertheless, he said, the union hesitated to submit suggestions for legislation because there were certain operators who would at once suspect there was something in it injurious to their interests and would consequently oppose it.

CHINA QUERIES U. S ON JAP FIGHTING

SHANGHAI, May 14.—(AP.)—Foreign forces prepared to guard their nationals today as the Southern (Nationalist) troops advanced on Tientsin, 60 miles southeast of Pekin, their objective in the Nationalist spring drive.

As the Southern troops moved North, the Nationalist council formally called President Coolidge's attention to the recent clash between southern and Japanese forces in Tsinan and asked the attitude of the United States government "toward this grave situation created by Japan."

PEKIN PERILED

Capture of Tientsin by the Southerners would cut Pekin off from the sea and the Northern commander, Chang Tso-Lin from his base and headquarters in Manchuria.

A large foreign population in Tientsin would be placed in a precarious situation such as resulted in grave clashes at Nanking and Tsinan.

The foreign military commanders, with a force of 8,600 troops at their disposal, decided to establish an outpost line on a radius of seven miles from the city. Japanese troops were assigned to guard strategic points in the foreign concessions, including the Eastern Railway station at the junction of the important lines linking Tientsin and Pukow, opposite Nanking, and Pekin and Mukden.

Rum Probe Continues Tonight

The federal grand jury investigating Pittsburgh's illicit liquor traffic will sit tonight in order to expedite the probe. It will be the second night's session since the sweeping investigation began last Tuesday. Other night sessions most likely will be decided upon because new witnesses are being summoned more rapidly than others are being disposed of.

A report that attempts are being made to tamper with witnesses waiting to be heard, may have been the real purpose of the night session. According to the report, special investigators of the prohibition department are running down rumors to the effect that many of those summoned from the South Side have been approached by persons who wanted to know what testimony they would give the grand jury. In some instances, it is rumored, the prospective witnesses have been coached as to what to say when interrogated.

When the jury resumed its probe this morning more than 100 persons were in the corridors of the Federal Building waiting to be called before it. In the throng were many hotel men and saloonkeepers from the North Side, or men formerly associated with those businesses which indicates that the jurors are still on the search of information relative to liquor traffic on that side of the river.

TWO STOLEN IDOLS MYSTERY! THRILLS! ADVENTURE!! LOVE!!! by FRANK L PACKARD

Mysterious Boat Sighted At Dawn

By FRANK L. PACKARD

(Copyright, 1927, Geo. H. Doran Co. by arrangement with King Feature Syn., Inc.)

CHAPTER I.

THE night had fallen a dead calm. At sun-up, floating on a flat oily sea, as though it were a relic of the darkness, a small, black speck showed some two miles away off the schooner's starboard bow. It was scarcely discernible, but in the idleness of a stifling calm it was enough to arouse the interest and curiosity of all on board. This interest on the part of the Malays and Lascars who composed the crew, however, waned rapidly and in direct ratio as the blazing heat of the day increased. But the after-guard, which is to say the skipper and the mate, perhaps for the very reason that they were intrigued by the possession of binoculars which left the identity of the black speck almost as much open to speculation as did the naked eye, continued to debate the matter throughout the forenoon.

"I'm still putting it down to being a ship's boat, or the wreck of one," insisted Marlow, the mate, after one of many inspections.

Martin Sweeney, better known amongst the islands and on every water-front within a thousand miles of Singapore as Capt. Scarface, screwed his little gray eyes to the binoculars and in turn indulged in a prolonged stare.

"So you've said before," he grunted. "But, glass or no glass, you can't make it out to be a boat any more than I can."

"I don't say as I can," admitted Marlow; "but just the same I've a hunch that's what it is."

Capt. Scarface lowered the binoculars, retreated from the rail, dragged the canvas deck-chair near-by a few feet farther aft to a spot where the main sail afforded the maximum of shade, and sprawled down in the chair. He was not handsome. He was grizzle-haired, lean of face, a man of 60 or thereabouts, and a semicircular scar ran in a white line from the right-hand corner of a clean-shaven lantern-jaw to the corner of his right eyebrow—a scar that, apart from being always peculiarly white, was unusually pronounced by reason of its contrast with the color of the skin on which it was traced, which latter was tanned and burnt almost to a shade of mahogany. He was six feet of bone and muscle. He had no superfluous flesh. His stockingless feet were thrust into native slippers made of some kind of matting. He wore cotton drawers, a shirt wide open over a hairy chest, and a white cap, whose black visor, once of shiny patent leather, was battered and crumpled and much worse for wear.

"Well, maybe it is—and then again maybe it ain't," responded Capt. Scarface noncommittingly. "If we get a breath of wind we'll bear down on it and see." He flirted the sweat beads from his forehead with a sweep of his hand. "God A'mighty, it's hot!"

At noontime the relative position of the black speck and the schooner was unchanged. The skipper and the mate came on deck again after a meal in the stuly cabin where, even in the unbearable heat that had put a damper on their seasoned appetites, Marlow had stuck stubbornly to his contention that the object adrift was a boat. Capt. Scarface promptly leveled the binoculars once more, and then, with a shrug of his shoulders by way of indorsing his consistent refusal to commit himself to any opinion, handed them to Marlow, and again took refuge in the deck-chair.

"I'm still saying it's a boat, or the wreck of one," declared Marlow doggedly.

Capt. Scarface tamped down the dottle in the bowl of

J. HAZEL CLARK Libellant. versus
PHILLIP F. CLARK Respondent

Libel in Divorce

To the Honorable, the Judges of said Court:

The Petition or Libel of
J. HAZEL CLARK

respectfully represents—

The libellant, J. HAZEL CLARK was lawfully joined in marriage with Phillip F. Clark, respondent on the 16th day of January A. D. 19 17 and from that time until July 28th, 1927 lived and cohabited with him, the said respondent.

That the said respondent PHILLIP F. CLARK

FIRST: Has by cruel and barbarous treatment endangered Libellant's life.

SECOND: Has offered such indignities to Libellant's person as to render her life burdensome and condition intolerable.

Libellant is a resident of the County of Allegheny and a citizen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and hath resided therein for the period of more than one whole year immediately prior to the filing of this petition or libel; and the present residence of libellant is

Eāna Street, Vondera Plan, Mifflin Township, Pa. in the County aforesaid

That the last known residence of the respondent was

James Street, Vondera Plan, Mifflin Township, Pa.

Wherefore, libellant prays that a Subpoena may issue commanding

PHILLIP F. CLARK, respondent to appear

First Monday of November - - - - - - - to answer the complaint aforesaid.

And that a decree may be given divorcing the libellant and respondent from the bonds of matrimony.

And libellant will ever pray, &c.

J. Hazel Clark
Libellant

This libel in divorce is one of the causes of the difficulty between Fayette J. Tyrell, attorney, and Philip Clark, whom he shot dead in a Munhall church. Tyrell filed the libel for Mrs. J. Hazel Clark against Clark. Clark's watch stopped one of three bullets fired at him, examination at the morgue disclosed.

$5,148,000 CITY BONDS UP

Ordinances providing for the sale of $5,148,000 bonds approved by the people at the last election appeared in Council today. The amount is set aside for the following purposes: One million five hundred thousand dollars for street improvements, $2,100,000 for new streets, $150,000 for parks, $498,000 for sewers, $300,000 for playgrounds and $600,000 for water supply. Another ordinance authorized the sale of $650,000 funding bonds to fund existing unfunded indebtedness.

'TRIANGLE' DENIED BY LAWYER'S SPOUSE

Mrs. Fayette J. Tyrell, mother of six children—three boys and three girls, ranging in ages from 7 to 22—still has faith in her husband. In an interview at her home in Lincoln place last night, she vigorously denied that there was any truth in the accusations of Philip Clark, 36, of Homestead, the man her husband shot and killed earlier in the day in the First Christian Church, Munhall.

"I want to make it clear that my husband is a good father and I have all the faith in the world in him," she declared vehemently.

LOYAL TO END

"My children and I will stick by him to the finish!

"We know he shot Mr. Clark in self-defense," she finished dramatically.

"Mrs. Clark and myself are the best of friends and I haven't the slightest doubt in the world that my husband's relations with her were above reproach," Mrs. Tyrell declared.

"Mrs. Clark applied for a divorce about a year ago and my husband was handling the case. I have been in my husband's office numerous times when Mrs. Clark was there and she has told me all about her domestic troubles.

"Her husband had threatened Mr. Tyrell a number of times and on several occasions he had tried to stir up trouble in the church."

"Why did Mr. Tyrell carry a gun?" the wife was asked.

"Was he afraid of Mr. Clark?"

"I suppose that was the reason," was her rather hesitant reply.

Mrs. Tyrell went on to tell about her friendship with Mrs. Clark. She told of their participation in church activities together and declared there never was a time when they were not on the friendliest of terms.

TOGETHER AT CHURCH

"Why, Mrs. Clark and myself served a dinner together Saturday night at the church. I must have eaten something that didn't agree with me, because I became ill during the night and didn't feel well enough to go to church this morning," she said.

All day yesterday and far into the night, friends of the Tyrells visited the family to offer their assistance and condolences. The wife broke down when her husband rushed home from church this morning to break the news of the killing to her. And she went into seclusion when her husband was taken to the police station and could not be seen until last night. Friends at the house told callers she was in no condition to be interviewed, but later, when she was told newspaper men had called, she expressed a wish to talk with them.

Pittsburgh AS OTHERS SEE US

"My very pleasant athletic association with the members of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Athletic Club, when we played football . . . . many years ago . . . . taught us to respect your athletes because of their prowess."

WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON.

WM. HALE THOMPSON

WILLIAM HALE THOMPSON, mayor of Chicago, born in Boston, Mass., May 11, 1869; taken to Chicago in infancy and educated in public schools. Spent his young manhood on western cattle ranches and was captain of Chicago football team, 1891-94. Member of Board of Aldermen and served several terms as mayor of Chicago since 1915.

We of the West know Pittsburgh as a great, prosperous, industrial American city with a splendid type of business men and genial women.

What I personally think of Pittsburgh is not alone from the standpoint above, but my very pleasant athletic association with the members of the Pittsburgh and Allegheny Athletic Club when we played football when I was captain of the Chicago Athletic Association football team, many years ago. Through our numerous visits the members of our team and myself, not only endeared your city to the people of this community by their kindnesses to us, but we were also taught to respect your athletes because of their prowess.

(From letters collected by Ray Jansen, of Pittsburgh.)

SUES FOR BALM

Charles K. Nichols of Tarentum boasted he would induce his daughter, Helene, to leave her husband, Charles Lefkowitz, New Kensington business man, and succeeded, Lefkowitz charged in a $100,000 damage suit he filed against his father-in-law in Comman Pleas Court today.

Lefkowitz asserted that 21 months after they were married in 1925, his wife deserted him. In filing the suit Lefkowitz's counsel, Rody P. Marshall, included a request that Nichols' property in the Tarentum Savings and Truust Company be attached.

SOUTH HILLS ROAD URGED

Proposed improvements in McNeilly avenue, mile long connecting link between the Library road at Elwyn, Baldwin township, and the corner of Pioneer and West Liberty avenues, Dormont, will be discussed by the County Commissioners and a committee representing the Federated Southeastern Communities of Allegheny county, headed by W. G. Armstrong, president, at a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the commissioners' office. An appropriation of $132,000 for the improvement was included in the recently approved city bond issue. The communities represented on the committee are Overbrook, Dormont, Baldwin township, Castle Shannon, Mt. Lebanon and Brookline.

Mother's Day was fatal for Helen Caterina, 6, 345 Flowers avenue, who, sent by her mother to visit her grandmother nearby, mistook rat poison for candy. She ate it and died before a physician could give treatment.

UNION MAY SUE POLICE

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—The American Civil Liberties Union announces that it has instructed its representative at Greensburg, Pa., to institute damage suits against Pennsylvania state troopers, who, it charged, rode down and clubbed striking coal mine pickets at White Valley, Pa., on May 9.

The union charged that Frederick E. Woltman, secretary of the Pittsburgh committee of the organization, was clubbed and arrested for attempting to speak to the officer in command of the troopers at the Delmont mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company and that he had obtained evidence against individual troopers.

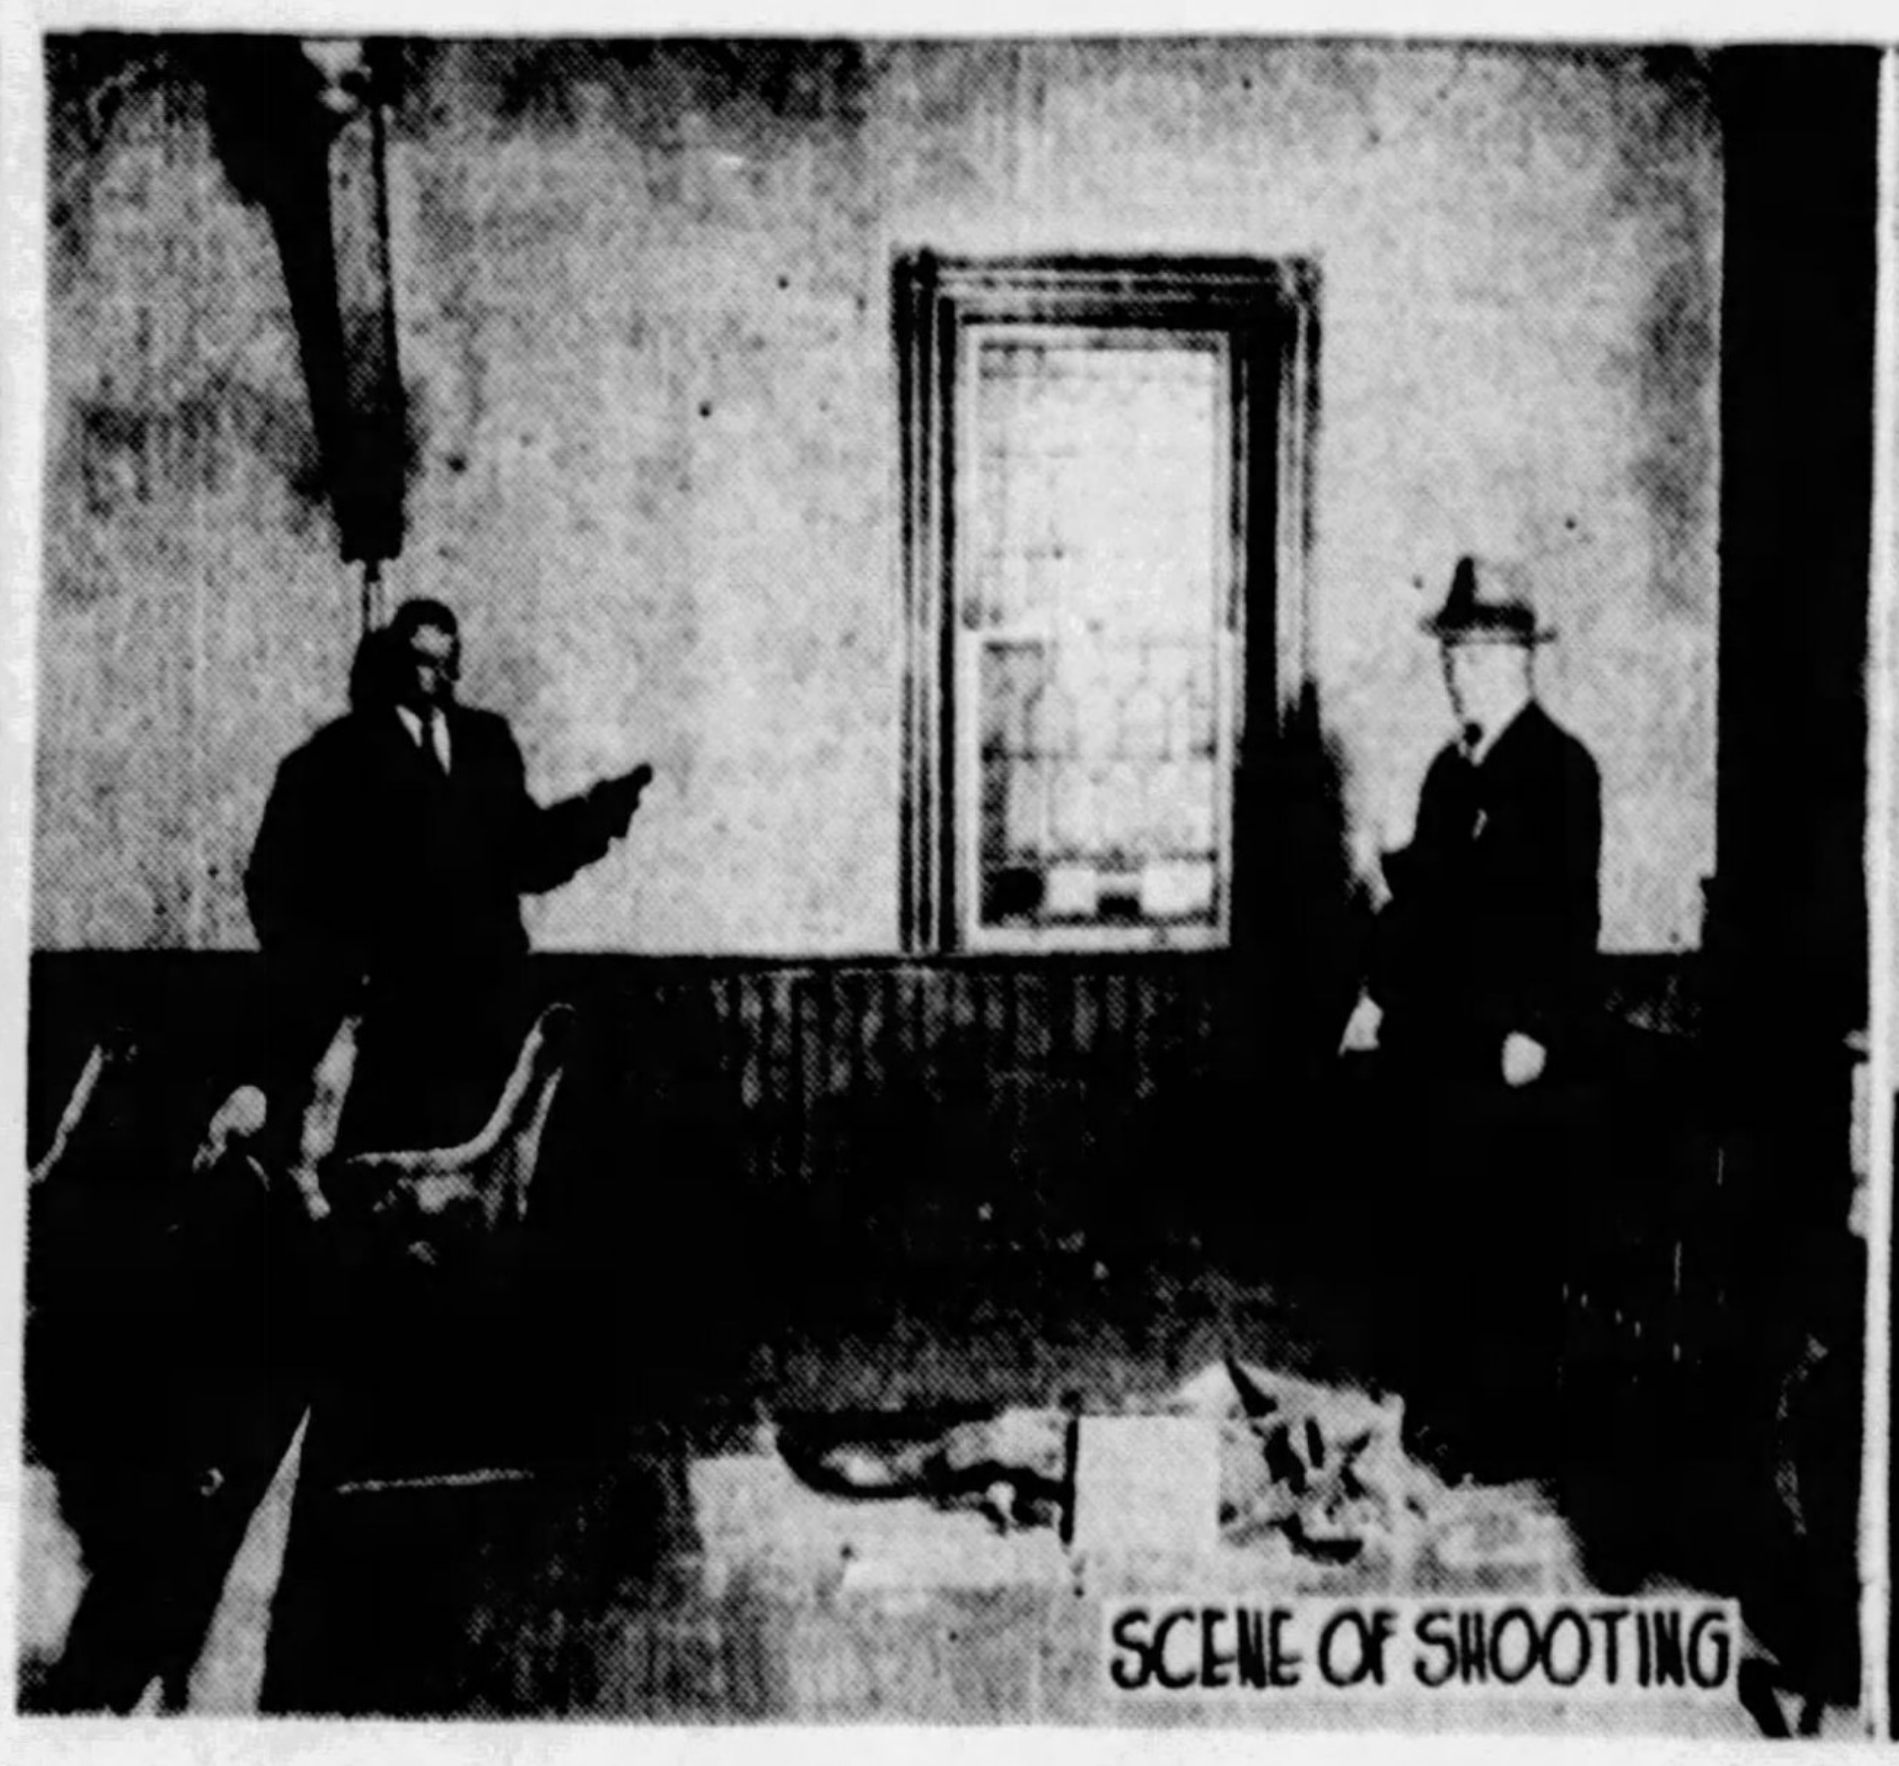
DEALS DEATH -:- Sunday School Head Shoots Accuser -:- IN CHURCH

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH, MUNHALL



PHILIP CLARK

SERVICE OPENING

Facing his accuser in First Christian Church, Munhall, as services were about to begin, Attorney Fayette J. Tyrell, Lincoln place, shot and killed Philip Clark, Homestead. Clark had accused Tyrell of breaking up his home.

DRIVES HOME

The quiet little church, Ninth avenue and Dixon street, Munhall, where the peaceful congregation was thrown into turmoil when Tyrell whipped a small automatic pistol from his pocket and sent two bullets into Clarks' body. Men, women and children stood aghast as the slayer fled from the church and drove away in his automobile. Constable W. O. Finley found Tyrell with his sobbing wife in their little home. For 11 years, Tyrell headed the Sabbath school.

IN REAR

Clark was standing in the rear of the church with Deacon and Mrs. John A. Hanley. He had just announced to the surprised couple that he intended bringing charges against one of the members of the congregation. "Who?" they inquired. "Tyrell," Clark answered, pointing to the Sunday school superintendent walking up the aisle. Tyrell pulled a gun and fired, as the figures above illustrate.

FAINT, COLLAPSE

Two bullets entered Clark's body. He reached as if to grasp his assailant and slumped to the floor, dead. Women fainted and the pastor, the Rev. J. G. Waters, collapsed.

BODY LYING IN FIELD IN WAR ZONE

WASHINGTON, Pa., May 14—County detectives and state police are trying to solve the mystery in the death of Paul Daugherty, 30, a nonunion miner of Avella, whose body was found yesterday in a field near the mining community. The man's skull was crushed. His home is said to have been in Buffalo, N. Y.

Authorities say Daugherty did not drink but was known to be fond of card playing. They also point out that there have been numerous fights in the Avella district between mine union friends and foes.

The man probably had been dead an hour before the body was found, according to Deputy Coroner C. W. Leech. The deputy believes Daugherty was beaten elsewhere, then taken to the field.

BOND ELECTION IN JUNE

The special county bond issue election will be held the latter part of June, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong announced today. A definite date will be set some time this week.

The people will be asked to vote on improvements amounting to $40,000,000. Commissioner Armstrong said today that he expected to call a meeting of the board by Thursday to discuss the items to be included in the issue.

It was learned today that Wilkinsburg borough will hold a special bond election on the same date as the county. The issue will be for street improvements and will amount to $1,120,000.

Marion Davies in "The Patsy"

Today's The Big Day!

Laugh Week begins officially in Pittsburgh today!

It will only end next Saturday night, when, for the last time, at the last performance at the Penn Theatre, Marion Davies flashes across the screen in this her latest and GREATEST comedy drama.

It's the tale of a little mouse of a Cinderella, who becomes a Cleopatra among her boy friends over night. Tired of seeing her big sisters grab all the boy friends, she invents a new kind of "tanglefoot" and, with the aid of Leap Year, steps out—high, wide and fancy.

"The Patsy" hits the high water mark of hilarity for the year.

DEATH WINS AUTO RACE AT CROSSING, 8 KILLED

FIVE OTHERS IN 2 CARS INJURED

ERIE, Pa., May 14—(AP.)—A baby is the only surviving member of a family of seven, and a father and son of another family also are dead as the result of two automobiles crashing into a Pennsylvania Railroad train at Espyville, near here.

Besides the eight killed, five others were injured, one perhaps fatally.

The tragedy, which occurred yesterday, is said by the train engineer to have been the result of an impromptu race between the two automobiles.

The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Clare Hays of North Shenango and their four sons, 10, 7, 4 and 3 years; Ward Thomas, 60, of Penn-side, and his son, William, 32, of Albion.

The injured are: Mrs. Ward Thomas, near death with a fractured skull, at an Erie hospital; the 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hays, Mrs. William Thompson and her two children.

Monnie Thomas, 21, son of Ward Thomas, also was in the Thomas machine, but was uninjured.

The locomotive was so severely damaged it required three hours to travel the 35 miles to Erie.

The engineer, James Pilmer of Erie, said the machines evidently were racing and that the crossing was free of obstruction, with warning bells ringing.

Coroner William Byham of Crawford county has started an investigation.

Espyville is in Crawford county as is North Shenango, home of the Hays family. Albion and Penn-side, where the Thomases resided, are in Erie county.

SHARON PRIEST GIVEN TITLE OF MONSIGNOR

SHARON, Pa., May 14—The Very Rev. James H. McAdam, 74, pastor of Sacred Heart Church for 26 years, yesterday was notified that he had been made a domestic prelate, carrying the title of right reverend monsignor. A cablegram from Bishop John M. Gannon of Erie diocese, sent from Rome, conveyed the information. Father McAdam, dean of priests in this district, was named consultor to the bishop recently. He was ordained in Erie, July 4, 1880, and held pastorates at Meadville, Emlenton, Johnsonburg and Mercer.

JEWISH UNITY HAILED AT CORNERSTONE LAYING

TREE OF LIFE SYNAGOGUE, ROCHESTER

A practical step towards Jewish unity, hailed as the first in this country, was taken with the laying of the cornerstone of the Tree of Life Synagogue and community center at Rochester (Pa.). Three branches of Judaism, Orthodox, Conservative and Reformed, were represented under one roof and at one religious service. Photo above shows the ceremony at the cornerstone laying.

The Death Roll

Oliver R. Cooke.

Oliver R. Cooke, 78, a resident of Carnegie for the past half century, died at his winter home in Orlando, Fla., Saturday. Mr. Cooke was born in Washington county, the son of David and Agnes Ritchie Cooke, and was a graduate of the Law School of the University of Michigan. He was admitted to the Allegheny county bar in the early seventies.

He was first united in marriage with Katherine McCluskey, who died in 1916. He was a member and ruling elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Carnegie, from which the funeral will be held on Wednesday. He was a member of La Fayette Lodge No. 652, F. & A. M.; Cyrus Royal Arch Chapter No. 280, and Chartiers Commandery No. 78, Knights Templar. He leaves his widow, Emma Rood Cooke, and one daughter, Gertrude E., wife of the Rev. Dr. James E. Walker, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

William Swift.

William Swift, of 1218 Esplanade street, died Sunday morning at his home. Mr. Swift was born in Canada, and for the past 21 years had been a resident of Pittsburgh. He was a member of Christ Episcopal Church. He leaves his widow, Florence E. Coo Swift; one daughter, Miss Gertrude E. Swift, and four sisters.

William Kaercher.

William Kaercher, 67, died yesterday in his home in Newport avenue, Castle Shannon. He was a member of St. Anne's Catholic Church, Castle Shannon. He leaves his wife, two sons and four daughters.

BELIEVE LEWIS MURDERED

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—(INS.)—Murder, motivated by robbery, and committed by a person who sought to efface the deed with flame, was the theory on the basis of which sheriff's investigators today pressed further their inquiry into the mysterious death of Dave Lewis, nationally prominent auto racing driver.

A bullet wound in his head, Lewis' body was discovered in his ranch home in San Francisquito canyon near here. On the adjacent ground a brush fire of unknown origin was raging. Beside the body lay a .45 calibre army automatic revolver.

The possibility of suicide was minimized by investigators when it was learned that Lewis did not own a revolver.

U. S. ECONOMIST TO ADDRESS RETAILERS

Many enlightening facts affecting the problems of retailing will be presented by Dr. Frank M. Surface, assistant director of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, and chief of the domestic commerce division of the U. S. Department of Commerce, at a meeting of the Retailers' Council, Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The meeting is open to every one interested in Dr. Surface's theme, "Retail Distribution."

Governmental agencies are doing much through studies and by free dissemination of worth while information to retailers and others, it was said.

"This authentic information," said A. W. Smith, Jr., chairman of the Retailers' Council of the chamber, "supplied by impartial experts, is a service which should be utilized to the fullest extent. The work of the domestic commerce division of the U. S. Department of Commerce is especially helpful and the analysis of subjects being made by them are being used as guides by an ever-increasing number of retailers throughout the country."

U. S. Expert

DR. F. M. SURFACE

Federal business expert, Dr. Surface, will address an open meeting of the Retailers' Council at the Chamber of Commerce Friday night, on "Retail Distribution."

CHAOS AT SCENE OF MURDER

Seldom has a murder gripped a community with the dramatic intensity of Attorney Fayette J. Tyrell's slaying of Philip Clark in the First Christian Church at Munhall yesterday. Members of the congregation who witnessed the tragedy, are aghast and people everywhere express amazement over the unusual circumstances surrounding the shooting.

Picture a quiet little church on Sunday morning—men, women and children filing into the house of worship, peace and good will in their minds.

Sunday school classes have just been dismissed and the superintendent, whom the children have come to know so well, smilingly pats a little tot on the head with a word of greeting and makes his way through the excited little throngs toward the church auditorium.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LEADER

Attorney Tyrell is the superintendent. He has many friends.

Deacon John A. Hanley and his wife are standing in the rear of the church greeting the worshippers. Deacon David D. Crawford is arranging the hymnals in a row of pews a short distance away.

More than 50 persons are in the auditorium and in walks a man alone. He is Phillip Clark. His wife is not with him—they have been estranged and a divorce suit is pending. Church people hear many rumors and Deacon Hanley realizes here is a man with a troubled mind.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanley move towards the newcomer, exchanging greetings and wishing him well. Mr. Clark grasps the proffered hand of the deacon. Here is someone to whom he can unburden his tortured mind.

MAKES CHARGES

"I am going to prefer charges against one of the members of our congregation," Mr. Clark announces to the surprised deacon and his wife.

"Who?" The query comes in unison from the pair.

The Sunday school superintendent has crossed the altar and is approaching down the aisle.

"Tyrell!" is the astonishing reply, and Clark turns to face the superintendent with an accusing finger.

The genial smile on the Sunday school superintendent's face gives way to an expression of consternation, mingled perhaps with fear. Murder!

PISTOL BARKS

Seconds seem like hours to the group standing in the rear of the church. The hand which gently patted children's heads a few minutes before flashed a wicked looking automatic pistol.

Three spiteful little flashes carry death to the man blocking the aisle between the pews where thousands have knelt in worship.

The man reaches out as if to stay the vicious fire. He slumps to the floor—dead!

Deacon Crawford straightens from his task in the pews. His face is pale as he bounds to the side of the fallen man, and Deacon Hanley leads his wife away.

TURMOIL REIGNS

High pitched screams rend the air and the hoarse cries of excited men mingled with the frightened cries of children. Several women are carried out fainting, and the pastor, the Rev. J. G. Waters, rushes into the auditorium. As his glance takes in the frightful scene, he, too, collapses.

A bewildered look comes over the slayer's face. He passes the hand that held the murderous weapon across his forehead and mutters something. It sounds like, "What have I done?"

"I'll finish myself now," he says sadly and moves unhindered to the door—out to the sidewalk and into his automobile to go home and tell his wife and wait for the authorities to take him away to jail.

LAWYER KILLS CLIENT'S MATE

gation by Chief County Detective George W. Murren.

Mrs. Tyrell last night said that Clark had threatened her husband and that the latter had armed himself for that reason.

The slain man's wife was a member of the First Christian Church choir.

Tyrell is a well known attorney with offices in Homestead and in the Berger Building, Grant street and Fourth avenue. He is a respected citizen of the community and widely known throughout the Homestead district. He was superintendent of the Sunday school at the First Christian Church and was going from the Sunday school room into the auditorium when he espied Clark telling John A. Hanley, a church official, about charges he wanted to bring against the attorney.

"I want to bring charges against a member of this congregation," Hanley said Clark had announced.

"Who," inquired Hanley.

"Tyrell," replied Clark, turning to face the attorney as he approached.

With Clark's enunciation of his name, Tyrell drew the automatic and fired three shots. One bullet entered Clark's heart, a second shattered his jaw, and the third flattened against the victim's watch. He reached out as if to grapple with his assailant and slumped to the floor.

CONGREGATION IN PANIC

Instantly the congregation was in turmoil. Women screamed, some fainted and others rushed from the building. The Rev. J. G. Waters, pastor, was in an ante-room when the shooting occurred. He dashed past the altar and as he beheld the inert figure of Clark on the floor, he dropped in a faint.

Clark and his wife have been separated for more than a year, and Mrs. Clark had filed action for a divorce on the ground of cruel and barbarous treatment. Tyrell is her attorney and Clark alleged that Tyrell had been responsible for his wife leaving him.

COMPLAINS TO DETECTIVE

Saturday night Clark met County Detective Michael McDermott of Homestead, on the street, and told the sleuth about the charges he intended bringing against the attorney in church. McDermott said Clark accused Tyrell of being too friendly with his wife and charged that the attorney frequently employed Mrs. Clark in his office. McDermott said Clark told him he did not care about his wife, but he "did not think Tyrell was a fit man to be superintendent of a Sunday school."

Enmity had existed between Tyrell and Clark, the man he killed in the First Christian Church at Munhall yesterday, it was revealed today by the pastor, the Rev. J. G. Waters.

PASTOR INTERCEDED

"I did everything possible to prevent such an occurrence as this," the minister declared. Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Clark's estrangement, I brought about a reconciliation, but it was of short duration.

"Mrs. Clark left her husband after about three months and things were as bad as ever. Clark seemed to resent Tyrell's acting as his wife's attorney and there was bitter feeling between the two men."

"Of what did Clark accuse Tyrell?" the pastor was asked.

"I do not care to talk about that," the minister replied.

"Had charges ever been brought in the church against Tyrell by Clark?" was asked.

"Please do not ask about those things. I cannot answer," the pastor insisted.

"SHOT UP" BY MISTAKE, BLAMES HIGHWAY PATROL

BELLEVUE MAN FAILS TO SEE "JOKE"

J. Clyde Hood, automobile salesman, of 198 Grant avenue, Bellevue, spent yesterday preparing a complaint against three Pennsylvania state highway policemen, with headquarters at Washington, Pa., who early Saturday morning "shot him up" while he was driving his automobile near Morganza, Pa., and then laughed at the "joke" when they discovered they had mistaken him for some one they said they were pursuing.

According to Hood, each of the policemen had a different story as to why they had shot. It was a "rum runner," a "burglar" or a "jail-breaker," according to which one of the officers was talking. The only firmly established fact was that bullets shattered the side window and windshield of his car and that three volleys of bullets missed their mark.

When Hood stopped his car, too dazed to speak, the police laughingly remarked that they had shot "the wrong man." In his haste to leave them before any more shooting started, Hood neglected to obtain any badge numbers, but is sure that he can identify each of the patrolmen and will go to Washington today to file the formal charges and demand an opportunity to identify the shooters.

Prohibition agents in the division under Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington are permitted to carry firearms "solely for the defense of their lives." The fact that a prisoner is escaping is not sufficient justification for the use of a gun.

Mr. Pennington strongly emphasized the foregoing declarations in an official order he issued July 29, 1927, to the members of his division, regarding the promiscuous use of firearms by enforcement agents. It was pointed out that if Robert L. Taylor, an agent under Pennington in West Virginia, had obeyed the order he would not have been dismissed from the service for firing at an automobile that failed to stop.

At a more recent date the order was repeated. The administrator said that "much of the good work accomplished by the agents during the last year can be instantly undone by the careless and indifferent use of firearms by irresponsible persons."

Each agent, investigator and inspector was required to sign his name to the order, stating that the order had been noted and understood.

Heads of all departments in the Pennington division, were directed to make a written report to the administrator of every instance in which it is alleged, or reported, that any of the agents use firearms in any manner.

Thomas Malpess will be in charge of the reception.

Mellon Looking For Offers at K. C—Will

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., May 14.—Did you read where Mellon says, "Hoover is the best man, and has the most qualifications for the job of being President"? But he did not want the Pennsylvania delegation instructed for him. He wants to go to Kansas City and wait for the best offer. In other words, he will take an inferior man if the inducements are better. You can't blame men like Jim Watson for wanting to have their state delegation to trade off, when one of our biggest men like Mellon wants to do the same thing, and the poor fellow voting in the primary still takes it serious and really thinks he has something to do with the nomination. Yours,

WILL.

Special Offer To Victims of Gas and Chronic Indigestion

May's Drug Stores Say Pleasant to Take. Elixir Must Help Poor Distressed Stomach or Money Gladly Refunded.

You can be so distressed with gas and fullness that you think your heart is going to stop beating.

Your stomach may be so distended that your breathing is short and gaspy.

You are dizzy and pray for quick relief—what's to be done?

Just one tablespoonful of Dare's Mentha Pepsin and in ten minutes the gas disappears, the pressing on the heart ceases and you can breathe deep and naturally.

Oh! What blessed relief; but why not get rid of such attacks altogether? Why have chronic indigestion at all?

Especially when May's Drug Stores, or any druggist anywhere, guarantees Dare's Mentha Pepsin, a pleasant elixir to end indigestion acute or chronic, or money back.

RAT POISON KILLS GIRL

Little Helen Caterina, 6, of 845 Flowers avenuee, ate rat poison yesterday while visiting her grandmother and after suddenly becoming violently ill, died before relatives could determine what had happened to her. Mrs. Rose Ametta, of 436 Flowers avenue, the grandmother, said she had placed rat poison about her house a few days ago. After questioning the child as to what caused her sickness the grandmother was told what had occurred. She called Dr. A. Wallace, of Hazelwood avenue, but it was too late to save the child.

BUS CHAUFFEUR HELD IN DEATH

Thomas Jackson, of 7 Moore street, will be turned over to the coroner today in connection with the death of Matt Markolin, 45, of Torrance place, killed yesterday in an automobile accident at Roberts street. A bus driven by Jackson is said to have struck a parked automobile, knocking it upon the sidewalk, where it ran down Markolin.

Markolin was dead when he arrived at the Passavant Hospital. James Albert, of 1505 Fifth avenue, walking with Markolin at the time, escaped with slight bruises.

SPAN CLOSED TO NORTH TRAFFIC FOR REPAIRS

The Twenty-second Street Bridge was closed to northbound traffic this morning to permit workmen to begin resurfacing the roadway. The work will last about a week. City engineers have appealed to motorists to use the Liberty and South Tenth Street bridges instead of the Twenty-second Street Bridge whenever possible.

NEW COAL RATE DETAILS BEING DRAWN HERE

Rate clerks today in the offices of Pittsburgh, Mahoning and Shenango valleys rate committee, Chamber of Commerce Building, began working out details for the new schedule of tariffs between the Ohio and Pittsburgh coal districts and the lakes, in accordance with the orders of eastern trunk line executives for a reduction of 20 cents a ton on lake cargo coal shipments.

In getting the work under way a conference of traffic officials was held for a discussion of various details in fixing the new rates.

The working out of the new coal schedules will require several days, and there will be a rechecking before the final tariffs are submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission. Among those attending the conference here today are:

F. M. Jordan, general coal agent, Baltimore and Ohio; H. M. Paisley, general freight agent, Pittsburgh and West Virginia; A. J. Cochran, coal traffic manager, Baltimore and Ohio; T. R. Fitzpatrick, coal freight agent, Pittsburgh and Lake Erie; W. R. Cox, coal traffic manager, Pennsylvania Railroad at Pittsburgh, and J. T. Carbine, assistant general traffic manager of the Pennsylvania.

SUSPECTS HELD IN ROBBERY

Four youths, suspected of complicity in the robbery of Samuel Moorehead, of 905 Cliff street, North Braddock, Saturday night, were arrested yesterday by Swissvale police on description furnished by Moorehead.

Moorehead told police he encountered four near his machine when he came out of a store, and when he could not start the motor, the youths offered to lead him to a mechanic's home. He said that when they turned off the main street they robbed him of $23.

The four gave the following names: George Chipp, 21, no home; August Cistello, 20, 7307 Agnes street, Swissvale; Peter Girdimo, 20, 51 Chartiers street, Rankin, and Charles Farina, 22, 2142 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale.

3 DEATH TRIALS UP THIS WEEK

Three murder trials are scheduled to be heard this week in Criminal court, two of them to start today and another on Wednesday. These will be the first murder cases in four weeks, the election trials having occupied the major part of the court's time for the last month. No election trials will be held until next week, when 10 are scheduled to be heard. The defendants are Gladys Franklin, Norman Bly and Luther Sutton, all Negroes.

DEGREES CONFERRED BY COLUMBUS KNIGHTS

The third degree of the Knights of Columbus was conferred upon 60 men yesterday at an inter-council meeting of the organization held at St. James Hall, Main street, West End. More than 600 knights were present, representing five local councils. The meeting was followed by a banquet at Hotel Chatham at which organization officers spoke.

MRS. EDWARD J. MURPHY

Mrs. Edward J. Murphy, Bayard place, is pictured here with her pretty little daughter, Florence Edna Murphy.

MAY is a lovely time of the year for one's wedding, isn't it? And what could be lovelier than a wedding at one's country home in the season of apple blossoms, and peach blossoms, and cherry blossoms?

Winifred Graham Croft, daughter of the Harry W. Crofts, of the Schenley Apartments, will be married on Saturday, you remember, at the Croft summer home at Clapboard Ridge, Greenwich, Conn. And if the gods are kind, she will have a lovely setting of spring landscape for her nuptials.

Some time ago Winifred announced the names of her attendants, and now we have just heard who the men of the bridal party will be.

William Stavely Wilson, son of the John Alexander Wilsons, of New York, who is, of course, the prospective bridegroom, has asked his brother, James H. Wilson, to be his best man.

And the ushers will be Richard Graham Croft, of Greenwich and Pittsburgh, Winifred's brother, as you all know; Elliott S. Phillips and Archibald MacNichol, of Greenwich; Elliott H. Downes, of Montclair, N. J.; Herbert R. Garside, of Pelham; Deane W. Colton, of Brooklyn, and John R. Dunlap, Jr., of New Canaan.

Eleanor Croft, you remember, will be her twin sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. Clarence Mitchell, of Chicago, will be matron of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. Richard Graham Croft, of Greenwich, and Mrs. Edward Dewing, of Hartford; Mrs. Joseph Donner, of Buffalo, and Anna Childs, Margaret Stewart, Mildred Burgwin, Phyllis and Louis Totten, all members of Pittsburgh's younger set.

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Thomson Kerr, of the Shadyside Presbyterian Church, will go to Greenwich to perform the ceremony, I hear.

And like so many newlyweds in social circles, Winifred and Mr. Wilson are planning a European tour for their wedding trip. Upon their return they will live in Greenwich. Pittsburgh will not lose Winifred altogether, though, I'm sure, for she will make frequent visits to her family here.

Cleveland will attract many Pittsburghers this week, for the Cleveland Spring Horse Show is scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Some of the Pittsburgh and Sewickley sportsmen are expecting to have entries in the show, I hear. Richard King Mellon, popular young bachelor son of the Richard Beatty Mellons, will have a string of 12 horses entered in the show. His entries are, as you might expect, from the Rolling Rock Stables, and include the new gray team imported recently from England.

Although most all of the social set are now in the city, there are always a few folks who like to vary the spring with visits to nearby resorts.

Joseph W. Marsh, who spent a good part of the winter at Ormond Beach, you know, is now at Hot Springs, Virginia, where the season is really at its height.

White Sulphur Springs also is a scene of much social activity this month. Recently the H. L. Tredenicks, of Johnstown, entertained with a luncheon at the Kates Mountain Club, we have been told.

The junior Addison Browne Dallys, of Crafton, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Harriet Crosby Dally, to John Forster Hardy, son of the George Hardys, of Crafton. The ceremony was performed Friday in St. John's Episcopal Church at Wytheville, Va., with only the immediate families present. Eleanor Dally was her sister's maid of honor, and Robert Hardy was his brother's best man.

Spring visitors at Gotham include Mrs. Alexander C. Blair and Mrs. E. N. Hunting, of Fifth avenue, and Mrs. Frank Scott Willock, of Sewickley.

The Uriah W. Tinkers, of South Dallas avenue, are back in town, I hear. They have been at their winter home in La Jolla, Cal., you know, and arrived here on Saturday. Until recently they had as their guests their daughters, Mrs. Herbert Thacker Herr, Jr., and Mrs. Paul Sexton Hardy, with their children. Another daughter, Betty, spent a part of the winter in the West, and she is in New York now with Sally Louise Inness, of Los Angeles, who was a classmate at Miss Bennett's School.

An early June date has been chosen by Ruth Phillips, daughter of Mrs. Herbert Clyde Phillips, of the Alder Court Apartments. She will marry Ernest James Bisker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bisker, of Ashtead, Surrey, England, on June 2.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Jean Malone, daughter of Mrs. Robert R. Malone, of Crafton boulevard, Crafton, to William B. House, of Youngstown, O., and Washington, D. C. Both Miss Malone and Mr. House are graduates of Penn State College, and Mr. House is a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. No wedding date has been set.

Miss Helen Adaline Snively, daughter of Mrs. Harry A. Snively, of the East End, whose marriage to Nevin Truog Brennen, of Ben Avon, will be solemnized tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Rittenhouse, will have Miss Mary Irene Adelman as her maid of honor. Donald Brady, of Fairmont, W. Va., will be best man. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, pastor of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, and will be followed by a reception. Mr. and Mrs. Brennen will take a trip to Louisville to attend the races and will go later to Hot Springs. They will be at home in Emsworth after June 15. The rehearsal dinner will be given tonight in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association by Miss Snively's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Horner, of Northumberland street. AUTOS CRASH IN PARK,—ONE DRIVER FLEES

Police are searching for the driver of an automobile who early today abandoned his machine in Highland Park after a head-on collision with another automobile, injuring two persons in the other machine. A witness told police that the man who fled appeared to be injured. Mrs. R. D. Carson, 29, of Lincoln avenue, was injured seriously and her husband was cut and bruised. She is in the Columbia Hospital.

THIEL MAY QUEEN DIES UNCROWNED

GREENVILLE, Pa., May 14.—(AP.)—Stricken with blood poisoning a week ago, Miss Beulah Bauer, leading student at Thiel College, who was to have been crowned as May Queen two weeks hence, died in a hospital here today. The death-dealing disease came from a face infection.

She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Bauer, of Warren, Pa.

Miss Bauer was undoubtedly Thiel's leading student. In her senior year she was named Queen of May and was to have been crowned May 26. She held the highest scholastic averages and at a recent conference of students and faculty, was honored for her accomplishments.

Members of the family were at her bedside. Fellow students volunteered to undergo blood transfusion operations in an effort to save her life.

Collector Skips; Baseball Pool Players Out

A search was being conducted today for a collector for a local baseball pool who disappeared with his collections after selling hundreds of tickets. City detectives refused to give much information regarding the story except to state that many investors in the pool would be disappointed this week if they presented any lucky numbers for payment. The missing agent conducted the local office from a Federal street office, although the national headquarters are said to be in Albany, N. Y.

THUGS' VICTIM NEAR DEATH

Attacked by three thugs while walking in the old Exposition Park, near Galveston avenue, North Side, early today, George Better, 40, of 5251 Broad street, was robbed of $32. The highwaymen beat him unconscious and then fled, leaving him lying in the street.

Pedestrians found him and had him taken to the Allegheny General Hospital, where it was said his condition was serious. He told police he had remained in the district late, watching the erection of circus tents when beaten by the men.

FOKKER BOOMS BALLOON RACE

"Pittsburgh will see a great show when the balloon races are held on Memorial Day," Anthony Fokker, internationally-known designer of planes, predicted during his visit here Sunday when he was at Bettis Field, McKeesport, with a new 12-passenger Fokker cabin ship.

"Balloon racing," Fokker pointed out, "requires lots of courage and daring, to say nothing of skill. The pilot can take off and land by his own action—but it is up to the air currents alone to decide where he shall go. The element of uncertainty is always there. He may land on the Pacific coast or up in Maine.

"The aviator who is also a balloonist has a big edge on his competitors. He has had to study air currents and pockets. He knows, whether, under certain conditions, he can speed along at 150 miles an hour or only 100."

Several Fokker ships are expected to be among the varied assortment of aircraft that will fill the air over Bettis Field on Memorial Day. Saturday, thousands visited the McKeesport field to inspect the $80,000 tri-motored plane which was being taken West for air-mail service.

Little News Stories About Attractions in Theaters and Those Who Earn Their Bread in Movies

BIBLICAL FILM IN BILLS

Cecil B. DeMille's biblical photoplay, "The King of Kings," opens its engagement in the Alvin tonight. After the opening, two performances will be given daily, matinees at 2:15 and nights at 8:15. A large orchestra that travels with the company will play the musical score, adapted from the works of masters.

Today opens the sixth and last week of "Wings," photoplay epic of the air, in the Nixon, where it has had a very successful run. It shows as never before the part that aviation played during the World War.

The George Sharp Players turn from a week of melodrama to a week of domestic comedy, with the opening of "The Family Upstairs" in the Pitt tonight. It is said that Anne Forrest and Ralph Morgan will have suitable parts in the leading roles in the play, which is by Harry Delf.

Jay Brennan and Stanley Rogers, in "Margie," are the Keith-Albee vaudeville headliners in the Davis this week. Sally Phipps is featured in "Why Sailors Go Wrong," the screen attraction.

The seat sale will open in the Nixon box office at 9 o'clock Thursday morning for the Nixon Players in "The Man Who Came Back," with Harry Bannister and Katherine Wilson, Monday night, May 21.

OVER THE TEACUP

Sally O'Neil doesn't give her director, Joseph C. Boyle, any of her snack when he calls in to her at studio time to discuss "The Mad Hour." Stingy!

JUST A VISITOR

Norma Talmadge and John Barrymore. No, they're not playing together. Norma is visiting John, who is all dressed up for "The Tempest."

NOT A HOSPITAL

Vilma Banky will find plenty of competition for her job if her work is all as soft as shown here for "Two Lovers." We could do that and not "act."

Yale Doesn't Thrill to Screen Glorification So Rogers Seeks New School for Rah-Rah Movie

By REGINA CREWE

(Copyright, 1928. King Features Syndicate)

LOS ANGELES, May 12.

YALE doesn't want to be glorified. So it looks as though "Buddy" Rogers and Paramount will have to pick another school for their rah-rah movie. It was going to be called "Bulldog Yale." Perhaps now it will be "Princeton Tiger," "Harvard Beans," "Columbia Canary" or "International Correspondence School Brontosaurus." I hear Annapolis isn't so keen on having its midshipmen play in Lina Basquette's Pathe picture of that name. Perhaps they figure—quite correctly—that the middies wouldn't keep their minds on war after a glance at Lina's eyes. So Lina will do "Celebrity" next.

Clara Williams, whose husband was Director Reginald Barker, is dead. The old western fans will remember her as star of many a Thomas Ince production in the days of activity at the ancient Triangle studios in Culver City. There she played on the lot with such celebrities as Frank Keenan, H. B. Warner, Dorothy Dalton and the first "vamp," Louise Glaum. She met Reginald Barker at Inceville, and when she married him retired from the screen.

Wonder if you girls would be interested to know what the stars are wearing? At the Hollywood opening of "The Trail of '98" I noticed Marie Prevost, adorable in white chiffon covered with crystal beads. Her wrap was silver colored, with black and white fox fur. Dolores Del Rio was entirely in gold, with a gold shawl and shoulder corsage of orchids. Lina Basquette wore a violet chiffon gown with a green velvet coat embroidered in gold. Joan Crawford was in white chiffon with several tiers of tulle on the skirt and the bodice trimmed with rhinestones. Aileen Pringle was in pink satin trimmed with crystals, and Jacky Logan wore a silver gown with a pointed skirt draped in the back and a black velvet wrap with collar of white fox. Now don't be envious!

There is a chance that Jack Holt won't be able to play in "The Water Hole" for Paramount because of contract conflict. Jack, you know, alternates between Paramount and Columbia. First one lot, then the other. Now a situation arises in which Holt may not finish his Columbia film in time to meet Paramount's production schedule on "The Water Hole." So whether or not you'll see Jack in this sophisticated Western depends on how rapidly Harry Cohn's outfit shoots.

The juvenile role of "Me, Gangster," will be played by a youth who has never been in a film before. At present his name is Donald Loper. But this will probably be changed to something considered more "It"-ful. Donald is a husky blonde, and a former college pigskin chaser. The author of the story, Charles Francis Coe, who prefers to be known as "Socker," and Director Raoul Walsh are just back from 'Frisco, where they took on a load of "atmosphere" and also had a peep at San Quentin. Both insist it is the first time they have seen the prison.

"Rex King," the cowboy kid, who bragged himself out of a good job on the Fox lot, where he was scheduled to succeed Tom Mix, has had a call from Universal. Now that he has had his lesson, the boy should be alright. Maybe, after all, he can do all the stunts he boasted about.

FRANCES WHITE SPECIAL STANLEY STAGE FEATURE

Frances White, the diminutive musical comedy star, announced as a special added attraction to appear with "Venetian Nights" in the Stanley this week, is a character delineator, who, it is said, could hold the stage alone for an entire evening, if necessary, without running out of material. Versatile, she portrays widely divergent types. During her appearance in the Stanley, Miss White will have as a background "Venetian Nights," a revue, elaborately staged, including 50 or more singing and dancing boys and girls.

WILLOWS TO HOLD DANCE SATURDAY

The New Willows will be open again next Saturday night for the last Saturday night dance session until the regular opening, which will take place May 26. The entire Nixon restaurant review and a nationally known orchestra will provide the entertainment at the opening May 26. On May 29 an entire change of program will be made, featuring a well known actress, supported by a company of dancers and singers, it is announced.

CONGRESS HONORS DECEASED MEMBER

WASHINGTON, May 14—(AP.)—Memorial services were held in the House yesterday for the late Representative Ladislas Lazaro, of Louisiana. Representative James B. Aswell, of Louisiana, presided during the ceremonies.

The speakers included Representatives Wilson, Spearing, Sandlin, O'Connor, Martin, Kemp and Derouen, of Louisiana; Kindred, of New York, and Davis, of Tennessee.

Parisian Actress Leading Woman For Colman

Lily Damita, said to be one of the most beautiful women of Europe and the most popular of the young continental screen stars, arrived in New York last week on the Berengaria. This is her first visit to America.

Mlle. Damita was selected by Samuel Goldwyn as leading lady to Ronald Colman during the producer's recent European trip in search of new screen talent, following the completion of "Two Lovers," the last picture in which Mr. Colman and Vilma Banky are co-starred.

The lightest of blondes, with deep, dark brown eyes, Mlle. Damita is 23 years of age. Born in Paris, she began her professional career in the ballet of the Paris Opera, later switching her efforts to the field of light opera and musical comedy. At 19, she succeeded Mistinguette as star of the famous Casino de Paris revue. Mlle. Damita organized her own repertory company of light opera and toured the principal cities of Europe. While appearing in Berlin, she made her first screen effort for the German Felner Company, which proved so successful that for the last three years she has devoted almost all of her time to the screen.

Flappers of 1918 In Langdon Picture

The "flappers" of 1918 are swarming the First National Studios these days. Arrayed in long skirts, sweeping the ground, with hair piled high on their heads, they present a strange contrast to the modern girl.

These girls are playing with Harry Langdon in his new comedy, entitled "Here Comes the Band," which deals with the wartime era. The types are true to the period, and short skirts and bobbed hair are banned.

Langdon is probably using more variety of types in extras in this picture than in any he has made. About four weeks will be required to complete the filming of this laugh story.

EXCLUSIVE CLUB HIT IN RAID

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

DOLORES CASSINELLI, soprano, will be guest artist in the General Motors' program to be heard over WCAE and other Red Network stations at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The singer deserted the movies for the concert stage. She is said to have been featured in over 30 photoplays before embarking on her musical career.

Another network feature over WCAE—to be heard at 8 o'clock—will be the Great-Moments-in-History program. The Aaron Burr conspiracy will be the theme of this week's episode.

"Auf Wiedersehen," by Robbins, will be played by the Trail Blazers, an instrumental group, during the Riverside hour to be broadcast through stations associated with the Blue Network, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock. Other numbers by the Trail Blazers will include "The Spirit of Progress March," which opens and concludes the program; Herold's "Zampa" overture; Michaels' "Turkish Patrol;" "The Jolly Airman," by Carver; "The March of the Tin Soldiers," by Pierne; "Il Bergsaglieri," by Boccalari. A male quartet will sing "In the Land of Make Believe" and "Wobbly Walk."

A group of interesting selections make up the program to be broadcast by The Pioneers through WJAS and associated stations at 10 o'clock. Opening of the program with the Coronation March from Kretschmer's opera, "Die Folkunger," the Pioneers will continue with two short pieces by Arcady Dubensky—"Intermezzo" and "Compliment." Walter Edelstein, violinist, is to be heard in two numbers—Gershwin's "Short Story" and Boulanger's "Cortege." The Pioneers will close the program with Variations on a Theme, by Tschaikovsky, and "Christ When a Child a Garden Made," by Arensky.

Mr. Hoffman has been elected a trust officer of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A. For seven years he has been connected with the legal department of the Carnegie Steel Company. He assumes his new position today.

PROPRIETOR IS CITED FOR HEARING

John Duffy, the "Wheeling Kid," alleged proprietor of the exclusive gambling establishment at 5604 Baum boulevard will be given a hearing by Justice of the Peace W. L. Baker, of Bellevue, on a charge of keeping a gambling house as a result of a raid late Saturday night. Constables from Baker's office and federal prohibition agents visited "The Boulevard Place" late Saturday.

Forty men and women, many of them in evening attire, were in the house when the raiders arrived. No arrest was made, but Duffy was informed that he should arrange with Squire Baker for the hearing. Constable Edward B. Brubach of Avalon led the raiders. There was little activity in the place when raiders had entered by forcing doors, it was said.

THE GREATEST ADVENTURE STORY OF MODERN TIMES

First White Woman in Dangerous Cannibal Land

Missionary From Ohio Escorted by Horn Among Idol Worshippers

Preserving an Old Man Gorilla

By ALFRED ALOYSIUS HORN

Edited by ETHELREDA LEWIS.

CHAPTER XXX.

NEXT to board us was Sinclair and we steamed towards Eninga where the blind king lived. Miss Hasken had a drawing pad on her knee and as we steamed by the village she would make rapid sketches of the various places whilst I would tell her their history as far as I could. This seemed to interest her greatly.

ALFRED A. HORN

We traveled up the Angunie as long as we could see clearly and could make sure of the positions of the channells, and dropped anchor at old Injukis town the chief of the Okelly's of Angunie.

The Chief came off accompanied by his head man and woman and as Miss Hasken could speak Mpongue fairly well which language they understood the greatest curiosity they had ever seen, the White Lady, made their visit on board a great event.

They would ask her many questions about herself which she readily answered and this pleased them immensely and on parting she presented the dusky ladies with bon bons.

We made several short stops on our journey and arrived early in the morning at beautiful and picturesque Samba Falls.

Miss Hasken took great pleasure in visiting the natives and soon made friends with them. In her visits to the various parts of this mountain town she was generally followed by an admiring throng of youngsters and women and she took great delight in knowing their reasons for having so many wooden idols some of which are quite large and grotesque whilst some of them are even hideous and specter like.

I would explain what they were and she would always smile when I told her they were there to ward off evil spirits, diseases and ill luck of all kinds.

After she had visited the villages she produced her drawing material and made some splendid sketches of the winding river and the lofty hills beyond and she presented me with one which I sent to England. These were the first sketches of this most dangerous country and were highly valued by all who saw them. They were charcoal sketches in black and white.

The witch doctors were very much disturbed as they often asked me what was the white lady doing. This I explained to them, but I could see they were very dubious. Miss Hasken also made a short trip above the falls and told me that some day this would make a grand spot for a mission station, but in reality it was such a stronghold of witch-craft that it was then about the most dangerous spot she could have thought of in Africa. She was, being the first white lady ever seen in that part of the country, always looked upon by us traders as a great female explorer as well as a heroine, to trust herself into the heart of Isoga.

And the natives often spoke of her as their white sister and such she was, as being a perfect lady she treated them all with such human equality and respect that she completely won them over by her kindly actions and words.

She came from the city of Cincinnati, U. S. A., for the benefit of these natives and I could see by her words and actions she would have given her life for their sakes. This was humanity indeed and as this lady about 12 months after her visit to the Falls died of West Coast fever I had the honor of conveying her by sea and river to Barraca, the chief mission station at Gaboon where she was buried with silent regrettes.

We could not have thought of a burial of a white lady at Kangue, as there is no doubt the Isoga worshippers would have stopped at nothing to get her remains for Fetish, but would lie safely and undisturbed in her grave at Barraca.

On my return to Adoninango with Sinclair we found Count de Brazza six or seven large crew boys to get was on his way and we had orders to do all in our power to help him which was done.

Count de Brazza was a tall gentleman of what seemed middle age, although not 30 and was a pensive man who never joked or smiled.

He wanted a gorilla which he intended to ship whole, which was to be preserved in good white spirits and as the natives always knew where these were, we made up a large puncheon.

Gorilla Preserved

The gorilla arrived and was an old man who had given notice of day dawn for many years by his fierce howlings and drummings. He was a fine big fellow, and it took him into the puncheon, after his head had been sawn across with a light saw, as he was wanted for the purpose of craniotomy (study of the brain). The alcohol was then poured on the large brute and the large barrel was closed and firmly hooped. I heard afterwards that he arrived all safe in Europe.

And now this famous explorer made all ready for his trip, the large canoes were manned, the donkeys were last to be put on board. And as we fired him a rifle salute he waved us adieu and went off on his expedition.

This expedition was the means of adding a very large country to France. And as we all knew, was made to cut off any chance of Leopold's annexing both sides of the Congo.

9 DROWN AS BOAT TIPS

ROCKWOOD, Me., May 14.—(AP.)—Nine members of a party headed by Dr. A. F. Peterson, of Brockton, Mass., are reported to have drowned in Moosehead Lake late yesterday afternoon when a motorboat capsized off this place.

Charles Daley, chief of the Brockton Fire Department, is believed to have been rescued, but nine others, including Dr. Peterson and Sam Buddin of Greenville, who was operating the boat, are believed to have drowned.

The party, composed of Dr. A. F. Peterson, Chief Daley, Dr. David Bridgewood, John Sandberg, Fred Dahlberg, Dr. Frank Moberg, James Lays, Harry Howard and Sheriff Charles Blake, all of Brockton, Mass., and Sam Buddin of Greenville, pilot of the boat, left Greenville about 5:40 yesterday afternoon bound for the Tomhegan Camps.

According to the story told by Daley when he reached shore, the boat sprang a leak when about a mille above Kineo towards Greenville and near Sandbar Island.

SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

BY HAVEY J. BOYLE

IT WAS on the day the fellows in the gray uniforms beat the fellows in the white that we bumped into Pie Traynor, captain of the whites. His team that day had been shut out by a man named, curiously enough, Virgil Barnes. To determine whether baseball was the same as it was back in the old days we asked Mr. Traynor: "Why did Barnes shut out the Pirates?" And his answer proved that baseball is the same old game because he answered: "I don't know—he didn't have a thing."

"That was the answer you expected wasn't it?" asked Mr. Traynor, who is not unshrewd. "Yes," we said, "we just wondered whether the old order existed." For it is an axiom of the baseball realm that when a pitcher scores a shutout he has in the eyes of his opponents, not a thing, whereas on those days when the boys comb a hurler for 15 hits, they come rushing back to the bench, whoopeeing and yelling: "Say, that boy got a world of stuff today."

Oakland, that section of Pittsburgh which takes on a hum of activity when the Pittsburghs are at home, bounces and throbs when he game is over. Of seven or eight sizeable barber shops in the thriving community, one cannot find, as the old song had it, a vacant chair, while the cash registers of the drugs stores, restaurants and other establishments sing a merry tune.

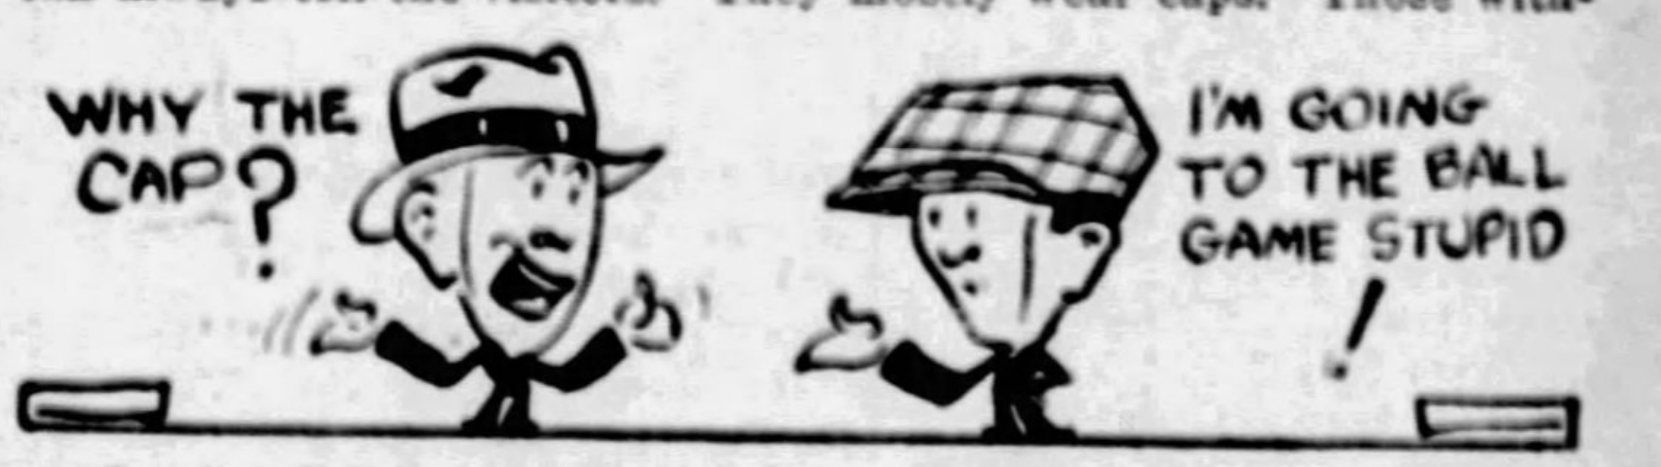
THIS section, favored by the location of the ball park, attracts parts of the population of the entire tri-state district. You can always tell the visitors. They mostly wear caps. Those without headgear are registered on the rolls of Carnegie Tech and Pitt, hard by.



WHY THE CAP?
I'M GOING TO THE BALL GAME STUPID!

It would furnish an interesting study for the class in psychology at Pitt, we have the honor to believe, to determine why men about to embark on a trip involving a visit to a game of sports, feel it incumbent to don a cap, which seldom becomes any wearer. Still, a cap is better than no headgear at all, it seems here, the observance of which breach should promote a law.

SPEAKING of drug stores, which, as you know, handle all sorts of articles, we are thinking about switching our trade from our one-time favorite store. Can you imagine, the proprietor was all out of plows on the day we went in to buy one.

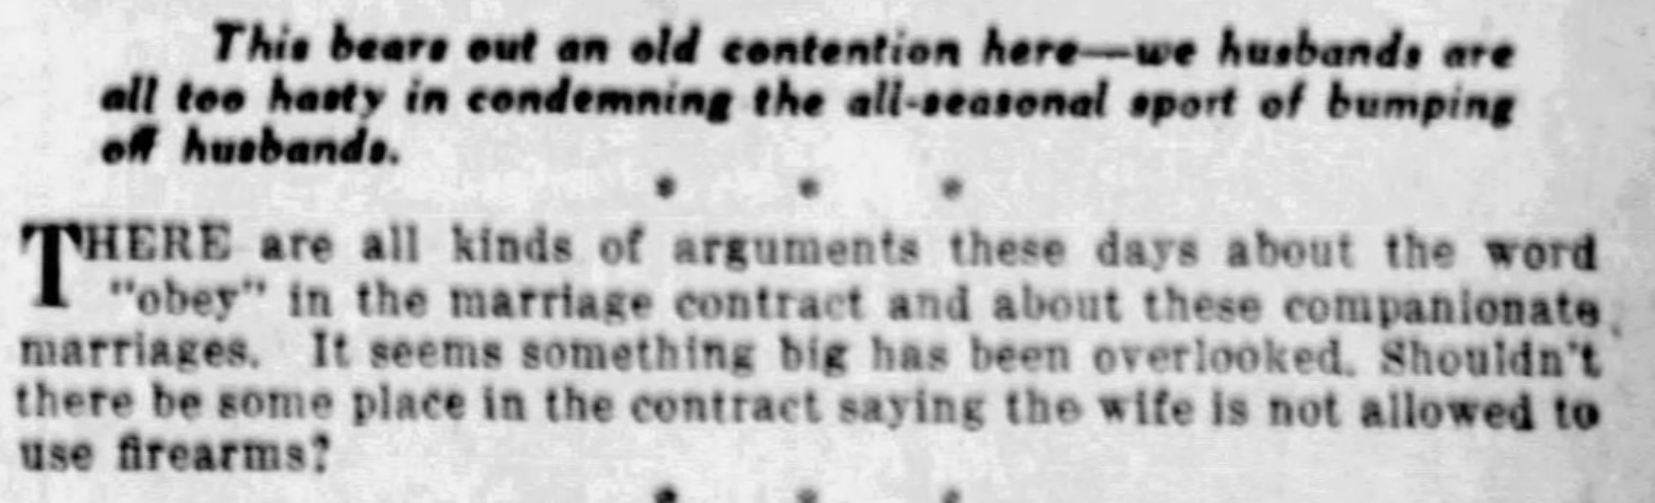
John Haggerty, an assistant district attorney, was telling of the indignation of a certain lady snuffing out the life of her whilom beloved helpmate. She was indignant because the man's family, strangely, bore her some ill-will. "How do they get that way," said the lady, "why no one ever heard of him until I killed him."



IT'S A SHAME, EVERY DAY YOU READ—WOMAN KILLS HUSBAND
BUT LOOK AT ALL THE FREE PUBLICITY!

This bears out an old contention here—we husbands are all too hasty in condemning the all-seasonal sport of bumping off husbands.

THERE are all kinds of arguments these days about the word "obey" in the marriage contract and about these companionate marriages. It seems something big has been overlooked. Shouldn't there be some place in the contract saying the wife is not allowed to use firearms?

And speaking of companionate marriages, which are as old as the hills, incidentally, but are getting publicity only of late, we saw a man walking along Liberty avenue carrying a bucket in which were cleaning soda and a sponge. On the other arm dangled a basket of groceries. There was a book under his arm. (We always crane our neck to see titles of books carried on the streets and in street cars.) The title of the book carried by the man with the household accessories was "Companionate Marriage," by Ben Lindsey.

What do you make of that, Watson?

SIGHT BOAT AS DAWN BLAZES

his pipe with a gnarled forefinger, and his eyes roved forward along the deck. He chuckled suddenly, grimly to himself. The recumbent and scantily clothed figures that met his gaze bore testimony to the intense heat. There was no movement. The natives lay under the shelter of the bulwarks or wherever else there was to be found even a suggestion of shade.

"The crew'll probably try to stick a knife into you for a four-mile spell at the oars in this heat, and small blame to them," grinned Capt. Scarface; "but as the matter ain't likely to be settled in any other way, seeing there's no wind and no promise of any, you're welcome to man a boat and go out there if you like. That's what you want, ain't it?"

"Yes," said Marlow, "that's what I was thinking of. I was going to suggest it. It'll kill an hour or two anyhow."

"Well, go ahead, then"—Capt. Scarface's grin broadened—"that is, if you can rouse up any of the dead for'ard there!"

"I'll rouse 'em!" promised Marlow gruffly—and, turning, bellowed out a series of orders, which, if not quickening the prostrate figures along the deck into instant and eager life, at least had the effect of bringing some of them unenthusiastically to their feet—and subsequently had the further effect of getting one of the schooner's boats over the side and into the water.

Capt. Scarface watched the boat pull away with Marlow in the stern—watched it casually for a few minutes, and then, with a growl of displeasure at the heat, pulled the visor of his cap down over his eyes and prepared to doze away the time until Marlow's return. His mind, however, for the first few moments, remained drowsily active. It might be a boat out there—or it might not. He had not committed himself. It probably made very little difference anyway—drifting around for months, no doubt, and utterly worthless—quite as likely to be a hunk of palm thatching that had been washed off the deck of some Chinese junk that had had a cargo of the stuff aboard. Queer lot, those Chinese junkmen! Carry anything! From live pigs to birds' nests! Not to mention unmentionable things—and a lot of dirty work here and there when it came to opium smuggling. Too damned free with a knife—in the dark! (Capt. Scarface unconsciously traced out the scar on his cheek with his forefinger.) Still, if it was a boat out there, the thing to do was to investigate it. Naturally! There wasn't any wind or he would have run down toward it. Not likely to be any wind for God knew how long, anyhow. Twenty-four hours now without a breath of it. Just as well Marlow was keen to go. He would have sent Marlow anyway—a little later on, though, when it got cooler—with the sun down a bit, and——

Capt. Scarface dozed.

When he opened his eyes again he stared sleepily out over the schooner's side in the direction Marlow and his boat's crew had taken—and, suddenly quite wide awake, reached for his binoculars.

"H'm!" commented Capt. Scarface. "Seems to have found something worth while anyhow. Looks like he was towing it back!"

Capt. Scarface continued to stare through the binoculars.

"Aye!" said he presently. "It's a boat, right enough. Well, I never said it wasn't. Must be in fair shape too, or he'd never sweat along with it!"

Capt. Scarface got up and walked to the rail. He laid the binoculars aside. He could see quite well without them now. Marlow, with his toiling boat's crew and towing behind him another boat of about the same size as his own, drew nearer and nearer. And then suddenly a grin spread over Capt. Scarface's features. It wasn't a worthwhile bit of salvage—the tow was a patched, battered, and quite obviously useless piece of property. The wonder was that it even remained afloat at all.

Capt. Scarface waited until the mate came within hailing distance, and then cupped his hands.

"You needn't bring it any nearer on my account, Marlow," he shouted good-naturedly. "I can see it's a boat from here!"

"It's more than a boat," Marlow shouted back. "There's a man in it—dead!"

CHAPTER II.

"GOOD God!" Capt. Scarface's jaw dropped. "Dead, d'ye say?"

"Aye," Marlowe answered. "And has been for several days, unless I miss my guess."

The boats came alongside, and, over the schooner's low freeboard Capt. Scarface stared down into the one that Marlow had towed back. Around him, the schooner's crew, their apathy gone, were now lining the rail, chattering excitedly amongst themselves and to the boat's crew below them, but he was scarcely conscious of the disturbance. Upon him there seemed to have fallen a sudden sense of shocked and distressful amazement. It was a mistake, of course—only a fancied resemblance—it couldn't be anything else!

He stood there swinging his hand everal times across his eyes as he stared down into the boat. Half across one thwart, his face upturned, a man, gray-haired, and whose age would probably be somewhere in the neighborhood of 60, lay there—dead. There was a red blotch on one of the white trousers' legs just below the knee. The blotch looked like blood. But the man's face—

Almost mechanically, Capt. Scarface lowered himself down into the boat, and, bending over the dead man, gazed intently and for a long minute into the other's face. There was no mistake—no question of fancied resemblance.

"God!" he cried out shakily. "It's Tom Kingsley, and no mistake!"

Marlow, too, had climbed into the boat.

"My word!" exclaimed the mate heavily. "That's a rum go! D'ye mean to say you know him?"

"Yes, I know him," answered Capt. Scarface. "And so would you if you'd been out in these parts for any length of time. Everybody knows him. He's Tom Kingsley—and a finer man never lived."

Marlow nodded.

"I found this in the bottom of the boat," he said. He took a revolver from his pocket, and hand-it to Capt. Scarface. "Every chamber is empty. And look at that wound in his leg. There's been a fight, all right, and a tough one, too, I'd say; but there must have been something queer about it to account for him floating around all alone out here in an open boat."

"Yes," agreed Capt. Scarface soberly. "And particularly so in view of the fact that his plantation on Palawa is a good hundred miles from here."

"Oh, a planter, was he? And from Kalawa!" Marlow whistled low under his breath. "That's a longish drift, seeing there hasn't been much else than calms for the last few days, so it kind of looks as though he hadn't come from there on this cruise. It would have taken a week or more, likely, with this weather. I'd say he'd been at sea somewhere around here, on a schooner or something, and there was a fight, and he was either dumped wounded into the boat, or else got away in its himself."

Capt. Scarface looked up from an examination of the dead man's wound, stared at Marlow for a moment, then his eyes played critically over the boat, and he shook his head.

"The wound didn't kill him—that is, not primarily," he said gruffly. "It might have induced fever and all that, of course—but what did kill him was thirst, exposure and starvation. There ain't a drop of water or a bite of food in the boat, so far as I can see. Well, it would take a good few days for him to die that way, and I'd say he's been afloat for a good bit more'n a week, which makes it look like he did start from Kalawa. And, besides, this ain't a boat that a schooner or any craft would give an inch of space to—it's more like an old bit of junk that the natives get hold of sometimes and then let go from bad to worse with beach-rot."

"I hadn't thought of that," admitted Marlow. "I figure you've bit it. But anyway, putting an unpleasant thing as mild as may be, him being in the state he is, we can't take him back to Kalawa, or anywhere else for that matter. Another day would—"

"It would," said Capt. Scarface—and suddenly his voice was husky. "Tom Kingsley! Thirty-five years and more, I've known him. My God!" He jerked his head abruptly at the mate, and cleared his throat uneasily. "Get a bit of sail-cloth, Marlow—and the cleanest piece we've got aboard y'understand? And a bit of something heavy for the feet to go with it. It's all we can do for him, save and excepting to see if he's got any belongings on him to go to them that are left. I'll attend to that."

"Would you say we'd better get him up on deck?" inquired Marlow.

Capt. Scarface shook his head. "No," he answered shortly. "There's nothing to be gained by it. You can do what's necessary here."

"Right!" said Marlow laconically—and, clambering back into the other boat, made his way from there to the schooner's deck.

Capt. Scarface, with a grim, set face, began to go through the dead man's pockets—and the while he muttered in a fierce undertone to himself.

"It's murder straight and clear," said Capt. Scarface, "and just the same as if he'd dropped dead with the bullet through his heart instead of through his leg. And if I know anything about Robert Kingsley and young Black Bob, some one'll pay for this, and pay for it—"

Capt. Scarface straightened up with a sudden jerk, and stared with puzzled curiosity at two small objects in his hand. There had been very little in the dead man's pocket—a pipe, a tobacco pouch that was empty to the last crumb, a small penknife, and apart from a rather good silver wristwatch which Capt. Scarface had already unstrapped and placed on the thwart beside him with the other belongings, nothing else except these two small objects that he had found in one of the back pockets of the other's trousers, which pockets, from their position, since the dead man lay almost upon his back, had naturally been subjected last of all to a search. And now he turned these two small objects over and over in his hand and continued to stare at them curiously. They appeared to be of solid ivory and identically alike—two little squatting idols, roughly about an inch and a half in height and three-quarters of an inch in diameter. Capt. Scarface made no pretense to being a connoisseur of anything pertaining in any way to art, but he could see that the carving had been exquisitely done.

"Wonder where he picked these up?" he muttered. "'Tain't the kind they sell the tourists—I'd lay a few to that!"

He was still staring at the two little idols when Marlow returned to the boat accompanied by the serang.*

"What do you make of these?" he demanded.

Marlow squinted.

"Buy 'em by the bushel anywhere from Shanghai to Singapore—two bob if you know your way about, and twenty quid if you don't," he answered promptly.

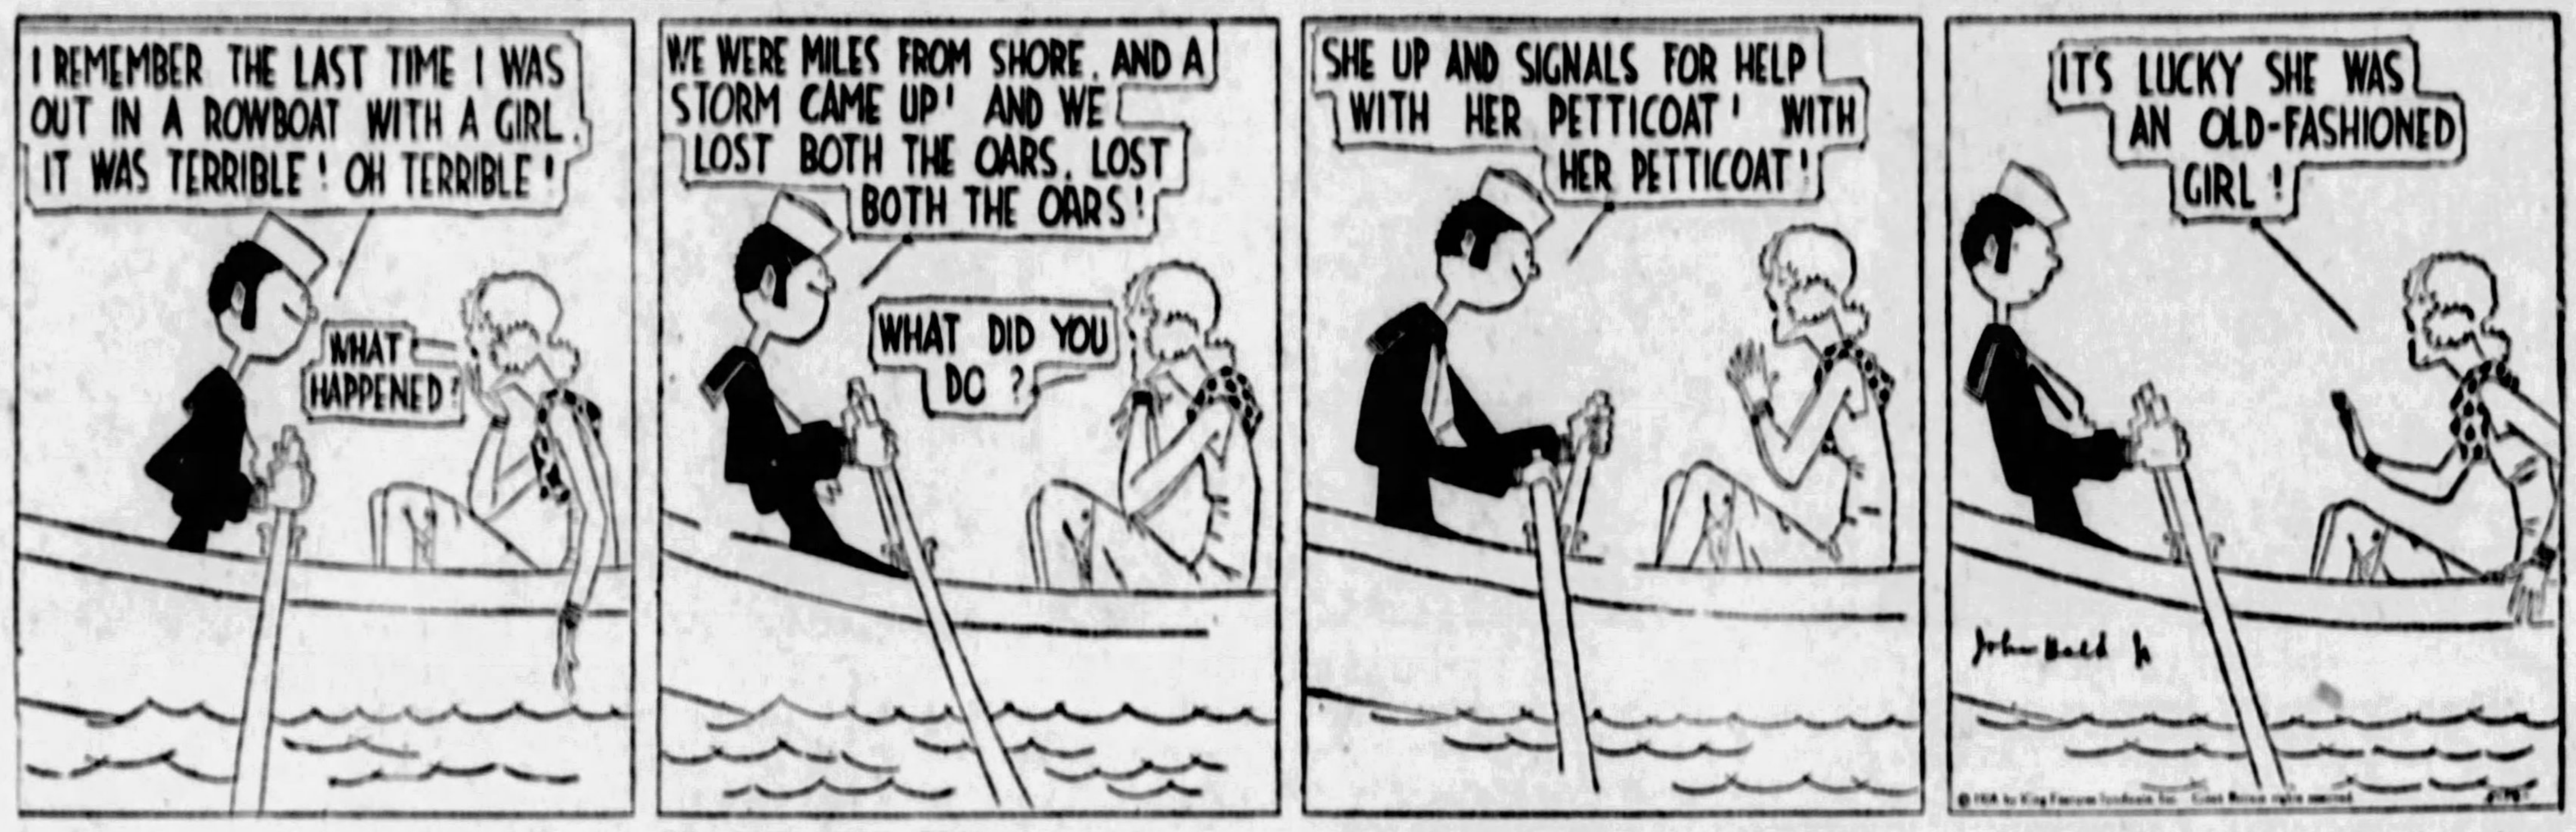
Merely Margy, An Awfully Sweet Girl

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Story by Lloyd Mayer

By John Held, Jr.



I REMEMBER THE LAST TIME I WAS OUT IN A ROWBOAT WITH A GIRL. IT WAS TERRIBLE! OH TERRIBLE!
WHAT HAPPENED?
WE WERE MILES FROM SHORE, AND A STORM CAME UP! AND WE LOST BOTH THE OARS, LOST BOTH THE OARS!
WHAT DID YOU DO?
SHE UP AND SIGNALS FOR HELP WITH HER PETTICOAT! WITH HER PETTICOAT!
ITS LUCKY SHE WAS AN OLD-FASHIONED GIRL!
John Held Jr

"My dear, I'm all-of-a-PURL-and-GURgle at this point—I mean I'm so THRILLED I could GRUNT because the other day this SAILor BROTHer of Allah's took a firm reSOLVE to DO something about the SPRING situation, my dear, and suggested we go ROWing on the BOUNDing MAIN and I give you my WORD, my dear, it was SIMply diVINE because I mean there's simply NOTHing I adore MORE than a little light BOATing only I think caNOEing is likely to upSET you at roMANTIC MOments, no less, so I perSUAded this ANcient MARiner to procure a large-sized BARGE effect that looked like NOTHing HUman, my dear, but had all the COMforts of HOME—you know the type. Well, ANYways, my dear, the boy is DUMB like a FOX on NAval manoeuvres! I mean he honestly couldn't be CLEVerer at the SWEEPS if he knew how to whistle the OXford BLUES and had stroked the entire CREW at WELLESley or something, my dear, because I mean we left a WAKE of picturesque EPithets and cigaRETTE stubs to report PROGress—can you BEAR it, my dear? But I mean I was honestly ready to ROLl over and BUTter myself with disMAY, my dear, because he said the LAST time he'd taken a girl ROWing, my dear, she'd had to SIGnal for HELP with her PETticoat or something and, my dear, I was wond'ring VAGUEly what he expected me to SUBstitute if the occasion for unDRESS signals should suddenly aRISE—can you BEAR it, my dear?

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Mrs. Townsend's Theory Is Demolished

IT was only at first glance that I thought I could understand but a part of the French inscription upon the back of the photograph which little Mrs. Townsend had brought so excitedly for my inspection. Upon the second reading as I firmly fixed every character in my memory as Lillian had signaled me to do, I realized the tremendous significance of the name printed upon the back of the picture. It was one well known to me, and as Lillian's shoulder pressed mine while she, too, read the inscription, I knew that she too was inwardly gasping at the sight of the familiar name.

"Now!" little Mrs. Townsend exclaimed. "Do you see why I'm so excited. Just imagine! Suppose Miss Lincoln should be she! Can't you just see the parties I could give and the sensation I could make? It would be worth a year's income to put something over like that on Tessie Rivers."

She reminded me irresistibly of a pretty kitten licking its lips over some cherished tidbit of food. But I realized as I knew Lillian did, that she must not be permitted to cherish the fantastic illusion she had. I waited, however, for Lillian's reply.

"Yes, I can see them," Lillian answered, smiling, "and I am so sorry to spoil your pretty theory. But I have a friend in the home city of this young woman—" she tapped the picture lightly, "and I have a letter from her which tells me that this girl is in the country. The letter was written since Miss Lincoln took up her residence at The Larches, so that conclusively proves the two cannot be the same."

Mrs. Townsend looked at her with disappointment in her eyes which also held distinct respect.

"Did you say your friend knows her?" she asked indicating the photographed figure.

"Oh, yes," Lillian said airily with a purposeful snobbery which made my laughter muscles ache, so foreign was it to my friend's usual manner. "She is quite an intimate at the—at her home—and she could not be mistaken."

Little Mrs. Townsend sat silent and chagrined for several seconds.

"Well!" she said at last, "of course one cannot go behind information like that. And the middle part of the face is not the same. But don't you think that there is some mysterious connection between Miss Lincoln and this photograph?"

Lillian considered an instant, then evidently resolved to throw a sop to the little woman.

"Yes, I do," she said, although there may be a very plausible explanation of it. But of course it it nothing upon which we can question her."

"No-o, of course not," Mrs. Townsend agreed, patently relinquishing a cherished idea of going to Miss Lincoln with the photograph in the hope that in the girl's surprised chagrin she might elicit some explanation of the uncanny resemblance. "And I am sorry to have troubled you."

"Troubled us!" echoed. "You've given us a thrilling half hour."

"I'm only sorry I had to demolish your theory," Lillian added.

But when Mrs. Townsend had departed, bearing the photograph with her, Lillian and I looked at each other significantly.

"What do you think?" I asked.

"That I wish your father and Allen Drake were here," she replied.

Mock Mince Pie

Halve two cupfuls of cranberries and add to them a cupful of seeded raisins, one and a half cupfuls of sugar, a half cupful of cider, a tablespoonful each of chopped candied orange peel and chopped citron. Add a teaspoonful of mixed spices and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Make a rich short crust and lattice the upper crust in half inch strips of the paste. Bake as usual. An apple minced fine is often added.

Backs Important

Two very new notes, and they promise to become most important in the new evening mode, are the tightly molded hipline and the neckline that is very low in back, and unusually high in front. I must caution the woman whose back is not very lovely against the latter, however.

FOR THE LOVELORN

Correspondents are reminded that all letters sent to this department must be written on one side of the paper only, and that no personal replies are ever given.

A Stenog

DEAR MISS GALE:

I often read your interesting column and enjoy your advice very much. I also agree with you on the three much-discussed subjects and think that any kind of a low-brow girl can smoke, drink and pet, but it takes a lady not to do such vulgar things. Now, as you give such excellent advice, I have decided to ask you how one can "be yourself." I find it very difficult to come out my "shell" and have tried so often to just "be myself," but when I am out with anyone, it just seems a "hard shell" manner settles on me which usually results in my being called "stuck up." I am no more stuck up than any one else and have loads of friends and just love to make new ones. Can you please tell me how to overcome this? Another thing—there is a fellow whom I see once a week in the crowd with whom I go. I met him when I first joined this club at a party they had. After the party, though I saw him every week, I don't know why, but I just couldn't speak to him. I wanted to very badly, but just put it off and so now we just barely say "hello." He did seem very interested and I am sure I want to know him better. Would it be proper for me to ask him to come to see me some evening? Then again my actions cause me much distress. There is a fellow who works in our office, and when I first came I always smiled and said "good morning." Then again, as in the first case, I quit speaking, and now he does not speak either. I think he is a very nice fellow and do want to become better friends with him. What should I do? I am no youngster, as I am 19, and feel I should know how to act better. I know you can help me and will thank you in advance for your wonderful advice.

A STENOG.

The only way you can overcome this self-consciousness is to try to forget yourself in your interest in other people. That may sound like cut-and-dried advice, but put it to a practical test. Dress as well as you can and then try to forget about your appearance. Force yourself to show real interest in other people's conversations and actions, and after a while it will come naturally. No one can do this for you. You must acquire friendliness before you can expect to acquire friends. Invite this boy to call on you. He, no doubt, thinks you do not like him.

Lovesick

DEAR MISS GALE:

You are the only one that can help me so I am writing to you for advice. I am in love with a fellow 10 years my senior. I'm not allowed to go with him so I go out to meet him without my mother's knowledge. I know I am doing wrong, but when I don't see him my heart cries out for him. I have done my best to forget him and I have failed. Please advise me what to do.

LOVESICK.

Yes, you are doing wrong, my dear. Is this man's age the only reason for your mother's dislike? Be very sure that she doesn't have a better reason for forbidding you to see him.

Janet

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a reader of your columns and come to you for advice. I agree with you regarding kissing, smoking, etc. My trouble is rather unusual. I do not know how to explain it to you, unless I start out by saying I am in love with a man. I have been for five years. He is older than I, but I care for him so much that age doesn't count. But recently he has been taking another girl out and has taken me to her home several times. She being married, I do not think it fair to continue visiting them, since I am positive he secretly takes her out. But unless I do I cannot hold his friendship. Dear Miss Gale, can you advise me. I really care for him.

JANET.

If you feel that there is a secret friendship between this man and the married woman, then I should certainly advise you to drop his friendship. His taking you to her home under such circumstances is almost insulting.

Dotty

DEAR MISS GALE:

Will you please come to my aid? I am a girl in my teens and just about idolize a fellow. I had a couple of dates with him and now he doesn't call any more. I feel that I have done something to change his liking for me. The question is this: Would it be considered all right if I would call him on the phone and invite him over or would you write him a little note? What should I say in the note, or what should I say when I call him?

DOTTY.

Don't do either, my dear. This boy knows where he can reach you if he wants to see you, and your calling him would only convince him that you are running after him. There is nothing you can do but accept the situation.

Do You Know What a Woman of 30 Should Weigh?

It all depends on her height, of course.

If she is 5 feet 7 inches in height she should weigh, according to the best authorities, 142 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 5 inches her normal weight is 134 pounds.

If she is 5 feet 3 inches she should weight 127 pounds.

It's dangerous to be always striving to grow thin—the Adirondack Mountains and health resorts everywhere are filled with health shattered women who will tell you that it doesn't pay to be too thin.

That is why so many thousands of underweight men and women are putting their faith in McCoy's Tablets.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking four 60-cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or two one-dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least five pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

The name McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets has been shortened—just ask for McCoy's Tablets at May's Drug Stores or any drug store in America.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator From New York

Importance of Keeping Organs in Proper Position

IT HAS been well said that "we are fearfully and wonderfully made." More and more am I impressed with the truth of this saying.

Consider the human trunk. The upper half is supported by a slender, flexible column of piled up bones, the vertebrae. The bulging, cylindrical chest rests on this slight foundation.

DR. COPELAND

Between the chest and another bulging group of bones, the pelvis and hips, is a great space, called the abdominal cavity. Contained within this cavity are the liver, spleen, stomach, pancreas, intestines and, in the case of women, their special organs. The kidneys are in a place of their own, but in a space which readily communicates with the abdomen.

It is remarkable that these organs, some of them bulky and heavy, are so suspended, supported and secured, that they maintain their proper positions in spite of the jolts and knocks, and all the circumstances of life. Gravity, accident and disease pass harmlessly over these structures. The average person goes through life unconscious of the abdominal organs.

Not every individual is so fortunate. There may be loss of support and a tumbling down of these vital organs. In an occasional case they may be crowded into the bottom of the abdominal cavity and even into the hollow of the pelvis.

When such a thing happens there are many disagreeable and sometimes serious symptoms. Function is disturbed and life itself may be threatened by this calamity.

The name "enteroptosis" has been given this condition. It is a well-selected one. "Ptosis" is a Greek word, meaning falling or prolapse, and "enteron" is another word from the same language, meaning intestine. Enteroptosis, then, describes exactly what takes place. The abdominal organs fall from their normal position and, in an extreme case, drop into the most dependent part of the abdomen.

There may be few signs, but the group of symptoms described as "dyspepsia" is the usual result. The associated constipation is a thing which may be the cause or result. There may be such accumulation of waste material in the bowel as to make a heavy, dragging mass, capable of pulling the intestine from its normal position.

Of course this is but one of many factors. Perhaps the chief one is the too common neglect of the individual to control properly the abdominal muscles. Watch your own habits—when you stand do you hold in your abdomen or do you let it pouch outward? "Pot-belly" is likely to be a fault which may result in enteroptosis. Unless the abdominal wall is kept in place, limiting the cavity and affording support to the organs, there is a likelihood of trouble.

In short, enteroptosis is another one of the many human ills which can be prevented by proper living and proper physical conduct.

Answers to Health Queries

R. D. O. Q.—What will remove boils?

A.—You should have a thorough physical examination to determine just what the cause of your trouble may be. Make sure the bowels eliminate properly. Avoid excessive sweets and starches.

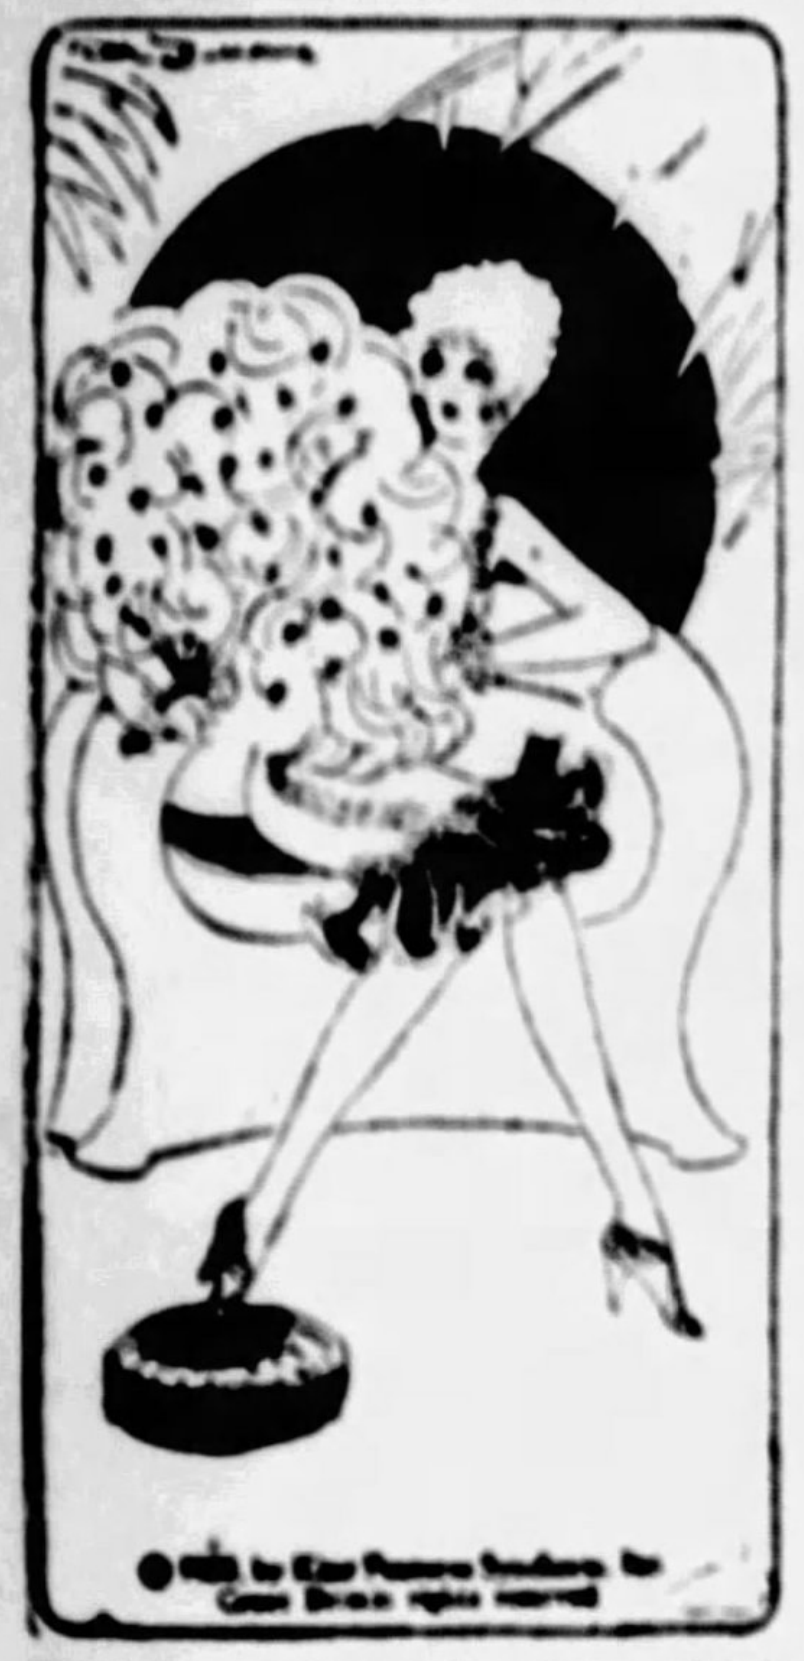
Ritzy Rosey



THE rage for polka dots, which has been apparent in almost all clothing and accessories, has at last spread to fans, which hitherto have escaped. Ritzy Rosey has one of the newest ostrich fans, which come in pastel tints, with the dots a darker shade of the same color.

Sunshine and Showers

Drawn by Dorothy Flack

IT USED to be that on rainy days all the girls looked just awful.

For showers seemed to bring out all the old clothes and clumsy mackintoshes and drab umbrellas and everything looked darker and drearier than it really was. But now! When it rains the umbrellas look like huge flowers bobbing and swaying to the beat of the raindrops. And each dainty miss in her gaily colored raincoat laughs defiance at the drops that slyly pelt her charming face and whip the roses into her cheeks. The shower seems to enhance her charm and you think she never could look any lobelier.

And then the sun comes peeping through the clouds and down go the umbrellas and off go the raincoats and presto! the rain flowers turn to glowing sun flowers and then you are in a quandary. For it's hard to decide whether they are more beautiful in the silver sheen of the showery day or the golden brilliance of a sunny day.

Sunshine and showers! If we had one or the other all the time we'd never know the joy of the sudden change. We'd love to think that we could go through life always smiling—but we never appreciate the smiles until we see them breaking through a mist of tears.

The old rhyme has a different meaning nowadays. If you don't believe me, look out of your window some rainy day and see all the lovely girl-flowers gaily bobbing along the street and if you don't think of a huge garden, running riotously over everything, then I'm sorry for you!

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

MONDAY COLD CUTS

IT TAKES more than the average man's intuition, to know whether his wife's glare across the dinner table means "Stop flirting with that woman!" or "Tuck your shirt in. It's bulging!"

* * *

Next to landing a fish that he has no use for, nothing gives a man such a thrill of triumph as snatching a woman he doesn't want from the arms of a man who wants her.

HELEN ROWLAND

I do not fear a siren
With a mass of dusky hair,
With languid, drooping eyelids
And a wicked, worldly air;
But, oh, I cross my fingers,
and I breathe a little prayer,
When I meet a blonde-haired Cutie
With a blue-eyed baby stare!

Every day in every way, marriage, like love and kisses, is becoming easier and easier for a man to attain—and it is becoming harder and harder to tempt him to attain it.

Divorce used to be a tragedy of scandal and recriminations; but now it's becoming just a pleasant little social affair, as refined as flour, as merry as a recess bell and as easy as having a tooth out with novocaine.

* * *

The more interesting a man finds you, the longer he takes to reach the petting point; a man only starts kissing, these days, when he can't think of anything else to do.

All these campaign promises read like the average man's love-letter—awfully sweet and flattering, but absolutely vague and noncommittal.

* * *

People weren't really so prudish and narrow-minded about the sex question in the old days; they just had something else to talk about.

Sponge Layer Cake

Break one dozen eggs into a yellow mixing bowl without separating them, and add to them two cupfuls of sifted powdered sugar; set the bowl in a pan of water at boiling point and beat with an egg beater for a half hour steadily. The water in the pan must be kept at boiling point. Remove from the fire and stir in juice of a lemon and one cupful of sifted flour, pour into three buttered layer pans and bake 20 minutes, try with a splint. Invert the pans to cool, then lay up the cake with a soft lemon frosting.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, May 15

THE astral influences for this day point to lively and interesting situations, with some intriguing or difficult developments, and these may be turned into channels of complication and anxiety by an indulged proclivity to rash deeds and ungoverned speech. There may be wholly unexpected events.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of an intriguing year, in which complicated or inexplicable situations may arise. These may not be solved by indulging an inclination to impulsive and hasty acts and ungoverned speech.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be quick, violent and unruly in word and deed unless properly disciplined. Well educated and trained, it may be prosperous and make a success in employment or in some interesting manner.

Curls for All

Curly locks can be readily replaced by feather curls; for with the tight-fitting, hair-line hats—whether skullcaps or draped turbans—the wearer's hair doesn't show. Two little coque curls, one upturned, add a very saucy air when placed either at the center front or over one eye.

Washday so easy for me now

Whiter clothes, too, with this hard-water soap

I'M all for Rinso, the granulated hard-water soap! It washes clothes so much whiter.

I think it's just wonderful the way dirt and stains float off in the thick Rinso suds. What lasting suds, even in the hard water we have here! Rinso asks no help of bar soaps, chips or water softeners. It makes the water soapy and sudsy all the way through.

Clothes come from the washer whiter than ever now that I use Rinso. The grimiest things need little or no rubbing. Why, even boiling isn't needed. No wonder 32,000 demonstrators of washing machines use Rinso! No wonder the makers of 32 leading washers endorse it!

I have a neighbor who uses Rinso for tub washing. She says it soaks out the dirt, and so saves scrubbing. Naturally clothes last longer, for they aren't scrubbed thin at the cuffs, collars and edges. Rinso saves the hands, too. I wouldn't be without it.

Punch Still Winning Argument in Baseball. Bush's Decision to Put Barnhart Back in Left Field Not Surprising; Old Story—Pitt Sprinter Flirts With World-Record Time.

EVIDENTLY the old sock is still the main essential and the best bet to string along with in baseball, as well as in boxing or in other lines.

Clyde Barnhart.

At least it is easy to be seen that that is the main motive behind Manager Donie Bush's decision to put Clyde Barnhart back in left field for the Pirates after testing both Adam Comorosky and Floyd Scott in that position, following "Barney's" first trial there.

"Pooch" may not have the speed of Comorosky or Scott, and he may be lacking in what is known as color or dash, but he can make base hits and he can knock in runs, and those are the principal things needed in the winning of ball games.

THE decision did not come as a surprise to the fans of the district, for they have had a hunch from the time he was taken out on account of a bating slump that sooner or later he would be back in there.

"Barney's" batting slumps are generally for short duration, and Manager Bush is showing good judgment in bringing back into the lineup the Hagerstown swatsmith whose reliable bat was a big factor in winning the pennants of 1925 and 1927, and who has hit well above .300 in five out of eight years since he began to play regularly with the Buccaneers in 1920.

AN old story is told over again in the decision that Barnhart is the best man for the open place after all.

Year after year, "Pooch," who is a slow starter, has seemingly been relegated to the background by a youngster who shaped up as his superior, but in due time the Pirates discovered that they needed Barnhart's bat, which is feared by every pitcher in the league, and sooner or later the Maryland mauler was found back on the job and delighting Forbes Field goers with the music of his busy bat.

It takes base hits to knock in runs and win ball games and Barnhart is the most promising man among Pittsburgh's extra outfielders to deliver them.

THOUGH the Los Angeles club of the Pacific Coast League took on Carson Bigbee, former Pirate, as extra outfielder,

U. S. GIRL DEFEATS BRITISH CHAMP

HUNSTANTON, England, May 14.—(AP.)—Glenna Collett, long-hitting American girl golfer, today set out on her quest for the British women's championship at the expense of the defending champion, Mlle. Simon Thion de la Chaume of France. Miss Collett defeated Mlle. Thion 3 up and 1 to play in a hard-fought match, opening the championship play.

By a freak of the draw the two stars were forced to play in the first round of the play. The French girl won the title last year, marking the first departure of the cup from British possession. It is the only major British golf title never won by an American.

A heavy rain which fell through the night made the course rather sloppy and the greens extremely slow today. The sky was overcast and a fresh northeast wind brought with it a threat of rain.

A large crowd was on hand to witness the match between the American and French stars. French, American and British flags floated from the flagstaff at the first tee and a holiday atmosphere perme-

Play Day Queens At Pitt

COACH McCLENAHAN
DOROTHY KOCH

HER IDEA

Miss Margaret McClenahan, professor of physical education for girls at the University of Pittsburgh, has developed the Play Day idea for girls, which is being adopted throughout the country. The plan promotes a more desirable form of athletics for girls, eliminating the intense rivalry which is a part of competitive athletics. The girls really play WITH, rather than AGAINST each other. One hundred and eighty co-eds in all will compete in Wednesday's meet.

GRACE AUSTIN

IN SPORT CARNIVAL

Miss Austin is one of the Pitt co-eds who will participate in the second annual Play Day festival of the institution, which will be held in the Stadium, Trees gym and Heinz House next Wednesday.

LILLIAN KIRSCH

NINE SCHOOLS TO COMPETE

Nine colleges and schools will compete in the Pitt Play Day program. They are Carnegie Tech, Pennsylvania College for Women, Allegheny College, Indiana Normal School, Seton Hill, Slippery Rock Normal School, Grove City College, Johnstown Junior College and Pitt. Miss Kirsch makes a neat baseball player, doesn't she?

RACES CARDED

Sprint races will make up part of the program for the Play Day meet, and Miss Koch will be one of Pitt's leading performers in this line. Twenty girls will represent each of the institutions entered and they will be assigned to teams in eight branches of sport.

RUTH THOMPSON

NAME YOUR OWN SPORT

In addition to a major sports program, which includes basketball, volleyball, baseball, hockey and tennis, any girl may challenge another girl to a test in the following competition in the Pitt Play Day meet: Basketball goal throw, basketball distance throw, marbles, quoits, jacks (very popular), baseball target throw, volleyball serve, broad jump, tennis serve, high jump, archery, dash and throw, hop-scotch and golf putting. How'd you like to enact the role of a target for Miss Thompson's William Tell?

SECOND SHOOT CARDED

The second shoot of the season of the Western Pennsylvania Trap Shooters' League will be held Thursday at the Greensburg Mountain View Club on the Lincoln Penn Highway. Four trophies will be awarded.

CHICAGO, May 14.—(INS.)—Excitement attending the thrills of a soccer game was blamed today for the death of Michael Cizek, 41. He collapsed while watching the game. Efforts of a pulmotor squad to revive him failed.

Champ Begins Work In Mountain Camp

SPECULATOR, N. Y., May 14.—(AP.)—Buried away once more in his mountain training retreat, dozens of miles from a railroad station, Gene Tunney has settled down to the task of fitting himself for defense of the heavyweight championship against Tom Heeney, New Zealand blacksmith, late in July.

The 10 weeks separating the big Marine from the title fray will be "little enough," so Gene believes, in which to attain perfect condition. This time there will be no underrating of an opponent, as Tunney admitted was the case when he defended the crown against Jack Dempsey last fall and was knocked down and nearly out in the seventh round at Chicago.

RED LUCAS IS FACTOR IN CLUB'S RISE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

PICKED by many as a second-division entry owing to uncertainty in the infield as well as the outfield, the Cincinnati Reds just now are stealing the play in the National League.

The drive of the Reds carried them into first place yesterday, and now that their absent slab stars are getting close to top form, the Rhinelanders are in a position to make many of the forecasters back-pedal.

LUCAS STANDS OUT

Standing out in the unexpected Red outbreak is Charles (Red) Lucas, skillful pitcher who has carried a heavy part of the pitching burden. The converted infielder was one of the best sharpshooters in the National League last season and he

SALO GAINS ON LEADERS IN CROSS-NATION RACE

The Phillies are the Bargain Store of the League

★ SUN-TELEGRAPH ★ SPORTS ★

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

P. WANER is closing the gap that separates him from his clever teammate, George Grantham, in the race for batting honors. The great little hitter combed two left-handers for three hits in the contest at Brooklyn. Paul is crowding the .400 mark.

Brother Lloyd is well above the .300 mark. In this respect Sprout fares better than he did at the relative period of last season. The youngster was far below the .300 margin at this time of the season, but when he did begin to paddle the rocket he held to a beautiful clip.

ROGERS HORNSBY apparently will have something to say regarding the league's leading hitter for the current season. Hornsby is hitting for .365.

Charles J. (Chick) Fraser, veteran scout of the Pittsburgh club, is recovering nicely from an operation for the removal of his tonsils. Chick was treated in the Presbyterian Hospital.

One-Hit Tilt for Uhle

CLEVELAND, May 14.—George Uhle went to bed last night thinking terrible things about Mickey Cochrane, Athletic catcher. Mickey was the only one of the A's able to get a hit from George's delivery yesterday, and as a result, Uhle lost a chance to pitch a no-hit game. The score was 2 to 0.

PIRATES

bids fair to do even better in the present campaign.

Jack Hendricks' infield is not regarded as being in the same class with the quartets performing for the Pirates, Giants and Cardinals and his outfield is experimental to a large extent, yet the Reds are moving along like real flag contenders.

The urgent need of a seasoned right-hand hitting catcher on the Pittsburgh roster is emphasized in the transfer of Bob O'Farrell and Jimmy Wilson to the two dangerous contenders for the honors now held by the Pirates.

Either O'Farrell or Wilson would be received with open arms by Donie Bush. Earl Smith and Johnny Gooch are good receivers, but when they face southpaws they are plainly baffled. A hard-hitting catcher often is in a position to break up a ball game and by this token O'Farrell and Wilson are likely to prove effective at the plate against any and all kinds of pitching. Both are excellent batsmen.

The Freebooters of this spring are taking quite a few beatings from southpaw pitchers. A hitter like either of the two stars just traded would give Donie Bush one more right-hand swinger, and the presence of another batter of this sort might stop the rush of the southpaws to the slab.

SOUTHPAWS TROUBLESOME

The Sun-Tele pointed out in the spring training period that the left-handers might be severe on the Pirates. The Buccos easily led their various rivals on the pre-season form sheets; it is doubtful if they could command the same honors now, in view of the deals engineered by McGraw and McKechnie in the past few days. It is true that the Phillies were left holding the bag, but the humble Quakers are accustomed to this role.

The catching condition on the local club is stressed, too, by the injury which befell Earl Smith in the first week of the season. Smith's leg is still badly swollen. Slow of foot even when he is normal, Earl finds it hard to navigate in his present shape.

The Bushwhackers came back to town this morning after a fruitless trip to Brooklyn on Sunday. The hastily arranged game in the Flatbush was taken by Uncle Robbie's team, 8 to 5, the play of the Pirates being very ragged, no less than seven errors being charged to the champions.

The Dodgers will remain in town through Wednesday, three contests being carded this week. When they leave, the Phillies will move in to cross bats with the Buccos.

Manager Robinson has wrought a change in his lineup since the Saturday game. Robbie decided to take Harvey Hendrick off third base after the costly error made by the converted outfield in Saturday's contest. Riconda has been moved from second to third and Partridge is back at his second-base post.

GRIMES GOES ROUTE

Burleigh Grimes pitched the complete game against his former buddies, but the seven errors took Grimes out of the picture so far as winning was concerned. Jim Elliott and Bill Clark, two southpaws, harassed the Buccos as they held Our Boys to seven hits.

HEIDELBERG WINS

A penalty kick gave the Heidelberg soccer team a 3-2 victory over the Chartiers Valley selected team yesterday. The teams will play a return game at the Bridgeville auto speedway Wednesday evening.

WINS 71ST LAP WITH GARDNER SECOND

ARROW HEAD BEACH, O., May 14.—(AP.)—John Salo, Passaic, N. J., led C. J. Pyle's coast to coast Tootsie Pounders into their seventy-first control here yesterday, traversing the 51.4 miles from Elyria, O., in 7:13:34. Salo ranks second in the derby with an elapsed time of 485:37:49 for the 2,804 miles to date.

Andrew Payne, Claremore, Okla., leader of the pack in elapsed time, jogged to a dead heat for sixth place. Payne, Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ontario, and Louis Perrella, Albany, N. Y., paced the distance 8:11:47.

Salo gained 58:13 on Payne today, but the Oklahoma runner holds an edge of 21:49:47 over his Eastern competitor. Payne's total time was 463:48:22; Granville's 497:09:59; Perrella's 517:25:25.

Ed Gardner, Seattle Negro, finished second yesterday in 7:45:30. His total running time was 538:37:03. He seems to have warded off successfully a "splint" that threatened to eliminate him from the grind.

Mike Joyce, Cleveland Irishman, headed the runners through his home city, but lost the advantage before the control point was reached and finished third today in 7:48:30. His elapsed time was 511:28:54.

following his unconditional release by the Portland club of the same league, coast reports say that his days in baseball are finally numbered. When Portland let him go unconditionally he was hitting less than .050.

Carson Bigbee.

A quicker-than-average fade-out for the player who was a sensation when he broke into the majors as a Pirate in 1916, and who, only six years ago, turned in a batting average of .350 for 150 games.

JUST where the managers of opposing clubs get the dope that the Pirates are weak against left-hand pitching is hard to figure, but in three of their last five games the Corsairs have found themselves facing southpaw gunners.

The three forkhanders were Henry of New York, whom they defeated last Tuesday; Clark of Brooklyn, whom they nosed out Saturday, and Elliott, who was the starter in the game lost by the Buccaneers, 8 to 5, in Brooklyn yesterday.

The Bushmen hold the edge for the season on left-hand pitchers who have faced them, having won five games against four lost to southpaws.

LIKE the return of Clyde Barnhart, an item that will help the Pirate attack greatly will be the complete recovery of Catcher Earl Smith. The Giants for a time were attributing their defeats to the absence of Bill Terry, their slugging first baseman, whose hitting, they contended, would have turned the tide in their favor in several battles. The same may be said of Smith. His injured leg has deprived the Pirates of one of their greatest threats on the offense. Smith has caught the games pitched by Carmen Hill and has been pressed into service as a pinch-hitter occasionally, but his sore leg is still in bad shape. When that member has recovered the Bucs will have another punch to add to their attack, and Smith's eventual return to steady duty must not be overlooked as one of the bright spots in the Pittsburgh club's future.

WHEN the University of Pittsburgh track team was defeated by Penn State in a dual meet at State College Saturday, in spite of winning first place in nine of the 15 events, it marked the first defeat suffered by the Panthers in a major sport in any regular season during the last 15 months.

Earl Smith.

True, the football team was beaten by Stanford at Pasadena on January 2, but that game was not part of the regular schedule and was not played in the regular season.

The Blue and Gold gridders were not defeated during the regular season of 1927, neither was the basketball team in the recent campaign, the swimming team also came through unscathed, and last year the track team won every dual meet.

The last defeat of a Pitt team in a major sport, prior to Saturday, barring the post-season football game on the coast, was administered by a basketball rival one year ago last February.

THE outstanding feature of Pitt's performance at State College Saturday was the sensational furlong run by Kenneth Webecan, star Negro sprinter.

Webecan was flirting with world-record time when he won the 220-yard dash in the remarkable time of 21 1-5 seconds, as he was only seven-tenths of a second behind the world mark, which is 20 5-10 seconds, established by Roland Locke of the University of Nebraska in 1923.

The next best mark is 20 4-5 seconds, established by Charley Paddock at Berkeley, Cal., in 1921, and equalled by H. A. Russell at Ithica, N. Y., in 1925.

ated through the gaily-garbed throng despite the threatening weather.

CHAMPION GAINS LEAD

The champion was off in front by taking the first hole. The American challenger came back at the second to square accounts, but after the third was halved, Mlle. Thion again took the lead at the fourth. The fifth and sixth were halved and Miss Collett squared the match again at the seventh. Glenna lost control at the eighth and sent three balls out of bounds to wind up with a nine. She was not confused by the bad eighth, however, and won the ninth with a birdie to square the match.

Coming home, the American entry struck her stride. She took the tenth and went up for the first time. The eleventh was halved, but another four won the twelfth for Miss Collett and she was two up. The champion won the thirteenth, but slipped on the next hole to two over par while Miss Collett hit a mighty drive to the green and scored a par three. When Miss Collett won the fifteenth she was dormie three. Mlle. Thion came back for the last time to take the sixteenth and reduce the advantage of her opponent to two with two to play. When the American took the seventeenth the match was over.

The play was sensational throughout. Starting her drive at the ninth when she squared the match, Glenna won five out of the next seven holes played. There were halves on only four of the 17 holes played. The cards:

Miss Collett has an easy match this afternoon, playing Miss Shirley Champlough, of the United Service Club.

MISS MILLER BEATEN

Miss Madge Miller of Detroit was the first American entrant to be eliminated, she going down to 3-and-1 defeat at the hands of Miss Elizabeth Williamson of the Royal Cromer Club.

H. C. LEEZER scored a hole-in-one at the 160-yard second hole at the Alcoma Country Club yesterday afternoon. John D. Hall, P. J. O'Mara and Robert F. Morris, Jr., other members of the foursome in which Leezer was playing, witnessed the feat. He used a mashie niblick.

SPANISH STAR LOSES

BERLIN, May 14.—(AP.)—Senorita De Alvarez of Spain, runner-up to Helen Wills at Wimbledon last year, was defeated yesterday in the Berlin tournament by Fraulein Cecilie Aussem, German star.

SANDLOT BASEBALL

by TOM BIRKS

THE Otto Jordans defeated West Newton, 11 to 5, in a game marked by Carroll's superb twirling; the St. Johns nine defeated Stowe by a 10 to 9 score when Gall, the home catcher, hit one out of the lot in the ninth frame, and the Garfield Independents nosed out the J. L. Thomas club, 6 to 5, in a constant wrangle at Garfield Park, for the three leading independent games yesterday. All battles were watched by packed stands.

Jordans looked good in their second game, the team working splendidly together. The Stowe-St. Johns affair developed into a slugging match, until Gall became the hero and broke up the game. The session at Garfield Park was marked by bitter discussions throughout the game regarding umpires' decisions.

THE Garfield-Thomas game was a drawn out affair. It took the better part of one hour to play the first two innings. A stiff wind was blowing towards the plate and this together with the sand blown up made things a little uncomfortable for the fans. Red Andrews was behind the plate, and when in the second inning brother Red came dashing platewards only to fall between third and Ritter the fans got a big kick. It wasn't necessary for Red to say "you're out."

ZIZZY ANDERSON was making the best of his speed ball with that strong wind, and Johnny Friesel had a tough time holding on to the fast one when it came down. Joos was on the mound for the Thomas nine but did not seem to be in the best of condition.

THE feature sandlot game today finds the Hermes-Grove and Pleasant Valley nines battling in a City League engagement at Wilson Park, North Side.

Pleasant Valley is finding it tough getting started and Tommy Carson knows that losing a few games in the early part of the City campaign will be fatal, so tonight's battle should find the two outfits out to win.

IN THE fourth inning of the Stowe-St. John game, Bill Latusick and Wojanis, the Stowe battery, evidently could not agree on what should be pitched. While they were making up their minds, Wojanis started to wind up, and changed his mind, two runners were on the sacks and they both moved up when the umpire called a balk.

QUITE a discussion was started at Garfield Park when Umpire Andrews called a ball over third base safe in the second frame. The home plate was covered with Thomas players arguing the play and finally Base Umpire Dick De Sanders was appealed to and the decision reversed. But the absence of white lines causes a lot of confusion when the umpire is trying to call batted balls down the base lines.

RALPH WANER played shortstop for the Jordans and teamed up with Backinger, the combination worked fast and looked good. This pair will work around the keystone sack in the opening game for George Falconer's Dormont team at South Hills field tomorrow evening. Waner got his first hit of the season with Jordans, and also got a base on balls.

JULIUS CAESAR LOSES

ROME, May 14.—(AP.)—Julius Caesar finished two lengths and a half outside the money in the Roman Hippodrome yesterday. A 3-year-old colt, Giulio Cesare, Italianized spelling of the conqueror's name, was a poor fourth on the Canapannelle race track for the Omnium stakes, 200,000 lires over a mile and a half course.

Teams Show Improvement

By JESS CARVER.

THREE tri-state college track and field records, one of which had stood for 19 years, another for six and a third for exactly one week, were rudely treated by three fine athletes over the week-end, with the result that today they are among the missing, and have gone where most good things eventually wind up, in the discards.

And while the three were being broken, another was equaled, Knoblock of Pitt tying the 120-yard high hurdle record of 15 2-5 seconds in the Pitt-State meet.

The 19-year-old mark that went was Guy Halferty's 220-yard low hurdle record of 24 4-5 seconds. Guy, now track coach at Tech, set that mark in 1909. Saturday, at Grove City, Lathom of Geneva clambered over the high timbers in 24 2-5 and is reigning champion today. It was a fine effort—give the little boy a big hand.

The six-year-old mark that was battered was, strange to say, another Tech mark, Kelly's 220-yard dash record, which he set in 1922 while running, I believe, against Ohio Wesleyan. Ken Webecan, making his third attempt of the spring to break it, succeeded against Penn State and traveled the furlong in 21 1-5 seconds.

The week-end mark that was bettered was the javelin measurement. Len Friedman, Geneva College basketball and track star, hurled the spear 189 feet 10 inches, to best the old record set last week by Gibby Welch of Pitt of 182 feet 8 inches. Friedman also broke the old record last week with a heave a few inches under that of Gibby's.

MAY GET 200 FEET

Now that both Friedman and Welch have shown such ability with the javelin, it is hardly likely that the present record will last the season. Friedman has already announced his intention of going over 200 feet, while Welch, throwing against a stiff wind at Penn State, hurled the spear 182 feet and over and will doubtlessly better this record in the Big Four carnival at Pitt this coming Saturday.

Unless Webecan uncorks some more speed, the 220-yard run and the hurdle records very probably will stand for the rest of the year.

One of the surprises of the week-end occurred in the 100-yard dash at the West Virginia-Bethany dual meet at Morgantown. The Bisons, though outclassed in the final result, swept all three places in the century, Tarr finishing first, Morris second and Fasick third.

Maxwell, West Virginia's star hurdler, came within 1-5 of a second of equalling the high hurdle record in this meet, traveling over the tall ones in :15 3-5.

Saturday's meets furnished the first real competition of the year, and the performances at the W. P. I. A. L. carnival at the Pitt Stadium showed a distinct improvement in the work of the scholastic athletes.

HIGH SCHOOLS BETTER

Both high school and collegiate teams have been held back this year by inclement weather, with the result that few really good marks have been made hereabouts. The high school boys seem to have suffered the most. So far there has been only one good mark made in high school competition. That was made Saturday at the W. P. I. A. L. meet by Cooper of Westinghouse, when he high jumped 5 feet 11¾ inches to set a new record.

LION EIGHT DISPLAYS POWER IN VICTORY

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Columbia's varsity oarsmen, intercollegiate champions last year, have staged a comeback as sensational as was the defeat they suffered at the hands of the Bulldogs of Yale in their 1928 racing debut.

The Lions flashed a complete reversal of form to capture the feature race of the twenty-third annual Childs Cup regatta at Princeton Saturday, beating Pennsylvania to the finish line by two and a half lengths. Chuck Logg's Tigers, pre-race favorites, were a bad third, a length and a half back of "Rusty" Callow's eight.

Aided by the fact that he was playing on his own course, Boomer bettered par figures to beat the American pro before 2,000 persons, the largest gallery that ever followed golfers on this side of the English Channel.

Hagen was 5 down at the end of the morning round when Boomer, playing at the top of his game, scored a 70, one under par.

In the afternoon Hagen reached the turn in 32, three under par, but at that was still three down for Boomer, never making any mistakes, was out in 34.

TRAFFIC CLUB IN TOURNEY

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

The Traffic Club of Pittsburgh took full charge of the Shannopin Country Club today—or so it seemed. A regular galaxy of members turned out for the event of the year.

J. W. Mathews, general chairman of the committee in charge, had everything in superb order as the golfers arrived, and there was no holdup of any sort at the first tee, despite the large number of eager enthusiasts ready to step off.

Following this afternoon's golf, the Traffic Club golfers were to attend a feast fit for kings, with an elaborate entertainment program to help matters along.

CADDIE-MASTERS PLAY

The Caddie-Masters' Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania had a big field on hand when play in its first tournament of the season started on the links of the Chartiers Heights Country Club today. The layout was in splendid condition.

Following the golf competition, the association held its annual meeting in the clubhouse, electing officers, discussing business for the ensuing year and conferring with members of the caddie welfare committee of the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association, under whose auspices the tournament was conducted.

FORMER SAILOR RING CHAMP SHOT TO DEATH

CHICAGO, May 14.—(AP.)—Walter J. (Blackie) Neis, 29, heavyweight boxing champion of the Great Lakes naval training station during the World War, was shot and killed by Policeman Otto W. Ruge in a police station garage yesterday.

Neis with seven others was arrested on complaint of neighbors in what police said was a beer flat. Neis attacked Policeman Ruge, who drew his weapon. In the struggle that followed Neis was shot.

Amateurs Booming Market Stocks Far Outrun Trade

By B. C. FORBES

"ALMOST every patient whom I see talks stocks. I have never seen anything like it before in my long experience." This observation comes from a well-known doctor. My barber has frequently made a similar comment. Business men one meets from other cities throughout the country nearly all tell the same story: An astonishing number of persons of all ranks are now keenly interested in stock speculation.

All this throws some light on why the market has time and time again advanced to new heights. The highest peak of all was reached on Friday, the last day the New York Stock Exchange was open.

THE war and its aftermath have changed many things and many methods, business-wise, financial, economic. Hand-to-mouth buying, installment selling, gigantic consolidations, colossal capital issues for foreign as well as home borrowers, the unprecedented spread of stock ownership—these are a few of the important changes.

The tremendous broadening of the stock market base, both in the matter of amount of stock listed and the number of buyers and sellers, accounts in some measure, at least, for the developments during the market's unparalleled rise.

The greater a movement, the greater its momentum. The stock market movement has attained proportions altogether without precedent. That it should go farther beyond reasonable limits than past bull movements went is entirely logical.

HERE is another consideration:

A large percentage of those now participating in the market have never been through a panic or even a sustained bear market. Since they began to dabble in stocks, the general trend has been upwards. Many small investors and speculators have, therefore, got it into their heads that the market can go only one way. They have discovered a delightfully easy and pleasant way to make money and they wonder why they were such fools as not to have learned this intoxicating secret long ago. The child whose fingers have never been burned hasn't learned to dread the fire.

WITH the exception of W. C. Durant, not one of those whose names are bandied about as being the king-pins of the bull leaders, is a veteran of many stock market battles. Durant has been through the mill at least twice before, but both times he overreached himself, with fatal financial consequences.

Bernard N. Baruch's name is scarcely heard. Jesse L. Livermore is not mentioned. Nearly all of those who are credited with swinging the heaviest lines of stock are fellows who have become stock market giants only within the past few years. Like many of the little outsiders, they have never yet been put to a severe test.

DEVELOPMENTS which old-timers interpret as danger signals are gaily ignored by those now in the speculative saddle. Brokers loans keep on expanding to unheard of dimensions. The Federal Reserve banks are being drawn upon very heavily for credit. Gold exports since the present outflow began approximate $500,000,000 and are still going on. The rediscount rate has been twice raised at half-a-centers. Call money has been costing 5½ and also borrowing rates have stiffened.

THEN, quite significant to old fogies, the income yield on favorite stocks is now below the cost of money, so far have prices been marked up.

THERE has been no quickening of the industrial and business pace commensurate with the action of the stock market. The motor industry continues the star performer. Steel reports are a little less encouraging than they were. Building activity is spotty. Railway traffic runs below one year ago and two years ago. Unemployment is still a problem worthy of very serious consideration. And we are on the eve of the presidential conventions.

HOW long the contrast between conditions in the stock market and outside the stock market will be continued, one has become tired trying to guess.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, May 14.—The raw sugar market was quiet and unchanged early today at 4.52c for Cuban duty paid.

Although quiet, raw sugar futures had a steady undertone and after opening unchanged to 1 point higher, continued steady, with the whole list showing net advances of 1 point at midday. The inactivity in the spot market seemed to check any aggressive or new buying, but expectations of an increased buying movement in the near future prevented any selling pressure with the trade at large inclined to hold off and await developments.

In refined a fair inquiry was reported, but buyers as a rule were limiting fresh commitments to nearby requirements only. Prices were unchanged at 5.95 to 6.00c for fine granulated.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, May 14.—Rains both in the winter and spring wheat belts, including Canada, with more moisture predicted, led to lower prices today in the wheat market here. Another bearish influence was liberal deliveries of wheat today on Chicago May contracts. Corn and oats were also weak, reflecting wheat market setbacks in which heretofore of late corn and oats had not fully shared.

Wheat closed unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to 1¾c decline; corn, 2⅛@2¾c off; oats, 1⅛@3⅛c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 17 cents.

The following grain quotations on the Chicago Board of Trade are reported by A. E. Masten & Co.:

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Pure Oil's Earnings Down.

Pure Oil Company's net income available for surplus and reserves last year was $13,031,561 as compared with $18,976,265, according to the annual report issued today. After reserves of $8,194,831 for depreciation, depletions and abandonment of leases, there was carried to surplus $4,836,529, comparing with $10,892,513 added to the surplus account the previous year. The company's fiscal year ends March 31. Total surplus as at March 31, 1928, was $59,107,747 as compared with $62,000,453 on March 31, 1927. Henry M. Dawes, president of the company, said in part: "Notwithstanding the fact that the past year has been the most difficult in the history of the industry and that physical conditions have not materially changed for the better, it seems to be the general feeling that the outlook is more favorable than it has been for some months. It is not possible and probably is not desirable, both for economic and legal reasons, that such a great industry should be rigidly controlled. Without running counter, however, to traditional policy much has been accomplished in the year in intelligent and cooperative planning and the helpful assistance of both state and national governments has been secured to the end of assuring more stable conditions, which inure to the benefit equally of the public and the industry. This applies to the marketing of petroleum products as well as to the production, and the conditions of overbuilding and destructive competition have been greatly mitigated."

Loewenstein's Share Trust.

Directors of the International Holding and Investment Company, Ltd., at a special meeting held in Montreal, have voted to propose to stockholders a splitup of the stock on a basis of 10 shares for one. This is the company of which Sir Herbert Holt, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, was recently elected chairman and of which Capt. Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, is president. Shareholders will vote on the splitup proposal at an early date. Stock of the International Holding and Investment Company, Ltd., is currently quoted on the London Stock Exchange around 310. Capt. Loewenstein recently announced that plans were being formulated for listing the stock in the New York market, and it is expected that the new shares eventually will be traded in there.

West Penn Electric.

The West Penn Electric Company, which controls the electric properties of the American Water Works and Electric Company, reported consolidated gross earnings for the year ended March 31, 1928, of $37,231,944, an increase of $1,961,921 over the gross earnings for the 12 months ended March 31, 1927. Consolidated gross income, after operating expenses, maintenance and taxes and available for fixed charges totaled $16,502,924, comparing with $16,202,622 for the preceding year, a gain of $300,302. Consolidated net income available for dividends on the 6 per cent and 7 per cent preferred and class A stocks totaled $5,097,669, an increase of $210,655 over net income for the corresponding 12 months of 1927.

Fisher's Stock Index Up.

Prof. Irving Fisher's stock price index is 365.6 for the past week, against 350 in the previous week and 339.1 a month ago. Prof. Fisher's commodity price index for the past week is 99.6 against 99.8 in the week preceding and 98.9 a month ago.

Stocks of Copper Decrease.

Stocks of refined copper in North and South America as of April 30 totaled 72,593 tons, a decrease of 14,390 tons from March, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Stocks of blister, including "in process," decreased 6,743 tons during April. The amount on hand at the end of that month being 235,673, total stocks therefore were 308,566 tons, a drop of 21,142 from March. April shipments were 137,223 tons as against 128,812 tons in the previous month. Total crude copper production during April aggregated 69,220 tons, a decrease of 1,097 tons from March. Four months output was 275,449 tons, against 285,834 in the same period last year. Smelter output in March amounted to 79,110 tons, against 81,895 in February.

General Cigar Reopens Plant.

The General Cigar Company has reopened its Quaker Town, Pa., plant, which has been closed down since Christmas, and will add 200 employes to the payroll.

Air Stocks Lead Advance.

Aeroplane stocks led the market again today on another flight which carried Wright above $20 a share and brought wide advances in other allied shares. Curtiss followed Wright on the move, while Packard Motor, which builds an air engine, jumped sharply as attention was called to that fact. Aluminum Company of America opened with an overnight gain of 15 points on the curb and there was a similar bulge in Niles-Bement-Pond, which controls the Pratt & Whitney Company, makers of an air-cooled engine on the order of Wright's "Whirlwind." Bullish sentiment spread to other sections of the list, encouraged by the strength in the air stocks, an easing tendency in the money market and the confident statements of John J. Raskob, chairman of the General Motors finance committee, and M. J. Meehan, the stock exchange member who engineered the upward move in Radio several weeks ago. Oils displayed determined strength on expectations of a further decline in production now that the Winkler (Texas) operators have agreed on a curtailment plan, and the mail order stocks pushed up on reports that the Cutten clique was active again on the buying side of Montgomery Ward. Friends of the latter company say its entrance into the chain store field is of considerably more importance than the Street has yet realized.

Stewart Warner's Net Expands.

Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation has issued its complete report for first quarter of 1928. Consolidated balance sheet as of March 31, 1928, shows total assets of $27,828,202, compared with $28,409,515 on March 31, 1927, and profit and loss surplus of $8,383,641 against $5,945,254. Current assets were $13,556,191 and current liabilities, including reserve for federal taxes, totaled $2,288,102, compared with $14,238,072 and $2,087,002 respectively on March 31, 1927. Net profit, after depreciation and federal taxes, for quarter ended March 31, 1928, was $1,387,284, the same as reported in the preliminary statement, and is equal to $2.31 a share on 600,000 shares of no-par stock, comparing with $1,062,048 or $1.77 a share in the first quarter of 1927.

Northwest Engineering.

Sales of Northwest Engineering Company in the first four months of this year are running 50 per cent ahead of those in the corresponding period of 1927 when the company reported net earnings for the year equivalent to $5.12 a share. Northwest is the largest exclusive producer of gasoline, electric and diesel-powered shovels, cranes and draglines for material handling and excavation. Northwest and Bucyrus-Erie Company are leaders in their field. They will be greatly benefited if Congress enacts a flood control bill with appropriations amounting to between $350,000,000 and $750,000,000 for reconstruction of the Mississippi flood area. Capitalization of the company consists of $2,500,000 6 per cent debenture bonds and 300,000 shares of no-par common stock. Shares of the company on the Curb Market have been under sizable accumulation in the past week.

America & Italy Shares Worth $6.

The "actual value" of stock of the Banca D'America E D'Italia is approximately $6 per share, James Bacigalupi, president of the Bank of Italy, said today in a statement deploring the tendency toward speculation in the stock. "In the face of these facts and the very limited marketability of the stock, any one paying from $15 to $16 a share is ill advised, and any one paying more is deliberately speculating if not gambling," Mr. Bacigalupi said.

J. & L. Raises Sheet Bars.

The Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation has advanced sheet bars to $34 a ton for the third quarter. The prevailing price is $32.50 to $33. The advance meets similar action by Northern Ohio makers.

Scrap Up at Chicago.

Heavy melting steel scrap is 25 cents a ton higher in the Chicago district, quotations ranging from $12.75 to $13.25.

Advocates Five-Day Week.

A five-day week for the entire building industry in the immediate future was predicted by President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, speaking before the United Building Trades Council in Boston. A decided improvement in unemployment conditions was reported by the labor chief, who said there was further room for optimism in view of a building program of great proportions for the current year.

P. R. R. Calls Equipment Trusts.

Announcement has been made by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company that all of its unmatured 6 per cent equipment trust certificates would be redeemed on July 15. Holders of the certificates will be paid the principal and a premium of [illegible] per cent with accrued dividends to the date of redemption. Redemption of the securities involves payment by the railroad company of approximately $31,150,000, the amount remaining outstanding of an original issue of $56,412,000, which was sold in January, 1920, to cover the purchase of freight cars and locomotives. As originally issued, the certificates were to mature annually from January 15, 1929, at January 15, 1935.

Copper Metal at 14⅝ Cents.

Copper advanced ⅛ cent a pound to 14⅝ cents, delivered in the Connecticut Valley on exceptionally heavy volume of business resulting from the favorable April copper statistics. Heavy export business was done at 14.50 cents a pound, cost and freight Hamburg. An advance to 14¾ cents a pound is imminent.

Lead Output Declines.

April production of crude lead in the United States and Mexico declined to 76,915 tons from 80,848 in March and 82,41[illegible] in April, 1927, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. Output of refined lead was 71,516 tons, against 79,745 in March and 76,048 in April last year. Stocks of refined lead on April 30 were 57,15[illegible] tons, against 57,136 the month before.

New York Utility Merger.

At meetings of the respective boards of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York and the Brooklyn Edison Company to be held tomorrow, final discussion of details of the proposed merger of the two companies will take place, after which it is probable that letters will go forward to stockholders of both companies. As the matter now stands only the two companies will be included and the present negotiations as the first step in the plan will call for the exchange of one share of Consolidated Gas common and one share of preferred stock for each share of Brooklyn Edison capital stock. Brooklyn Union Gas is scheduled to enter the combine later, according to rumors, after which negotiations looking to closer alliance of the main eastern utility systems are expected to get under way.

Big Trade in General Baking.

One of the largest transactions ever recorded on the New York Curb Exchange took place this morning when 100,000 shares of General Baking common changed hands at 14½. The stock has been rising steadily the past two weeks with the Street hearing rumors of a contest in the open market for control.

American Bosch Magneto.

The American Bosch Magneto Corporation reports net income of $71,276 for the quarter ended March 31 after depreciation but before federal tax, equal to 34 cents a share on 207,399 shares, against $42,7[illegible] or 21 cents a share on 201,399 shares in 1927. Net sales were $1,967,910, against $1,404,861.

April Sheet Production.

Production of sheet steel in April was 327,909 net tons, at 87.8 per cent of capacity, the National Association of Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers reports. The month's sales were 284,070 tons and shipments 327,674 tons. Finished stock on hand awaiting shipment was 109,200 tons. Unfilled tonnage on April 1 was 571,7[illegible] tons.

Safety Razor Profits Rise.

American Safety Razor Corporation and its wholly owned British subsidiary report consolidated net income of $272,880 for the quarter ended March 31 after reserves but before taxes, equal to $1.31 a share on 208,112 shares, against $151,885 or 7[illegible] cents a share on 202,000 shares in 192[illegible] quarter.

Rubber Imports Decline.

Importations of crude rubber into the United States in April dropped to 37,74[illegible] tons from 48,673 in April last year, the Rubber Association of America reports. Imports for the four months of 1928 were 153,822 tons, against 157,312 a year ago.

Electrical Exports Gain.

Electrical equipment exported from the United States in March amounted to $9,858,279 and represented a gain of $1,000,200 as compared with the corresponding month in 1927, the Department of Commerce announced today. This was also a gain over February, when the exports were valued at $7,867,142. Batteries, radio equipment, electric lamps and washing machines accounted for over half the increase. In heavier equipment substantial increases were made for direct current generators, railway motors and rectifiers, double current and motor generators, dynamotors, synchronous and other converters. Portable electric tools showed a gain of $48,106.

Cotton Consumption Report.

The Census Bureau reports there were consumed in April 525,158 bales of cotton exclusive of linters, against 581,318 bales in March and 618,279 in April, 1927. Cotton on hand in consuming establishments on April 30 was 1,507,992 bales, against 1,593,486 in the preceding month and 1,891,137 on April 30, 1927. Linters consumed during April amounted to 57,51[illegible] bales, compared with 61,410 bales during March and 67,745 bales during April, 1927. There were 222,374 bales on hand in consuming establishments on April 30, last, against 229,095 on March 31, and 230,48[illegible] bales on April 30, last year.

Otis Steel Earnings Larger.

Earnings of the Otis Steel Company in April were $355,909 after all charges except federal taxes. This compared with $145,459 after all charges but taxes in April, 1927, an increase of 145 per cent over one year ago. For the first four months of 1928 the company earned $1,305,375 after all charges, but before federal taxes, against $716,594 for the corresponding period of 1927.

LONE STAR GAS SAGS LOWER

A rise to a new high in Standard Sanitary and moderate selling in Lone Star which carried it off fractionally from Friday's close were the noticeable incidents of the trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange at the opening of the new week today.

Standard was in demand from the start and while the advance met a little opposition in the shape of profit-taking from the trading element, there was a heavy enough volume in the buying column to offset these offerings. The buying here was in response to buying in New York where the shares were listed last week. The newcomer to the "big board" will find many friends among the traders who operate only in New York Stock Exchange issues, local people believe, and it is expected the market for the stock will broaden perceptibly when knowledge of the company and its record spreads amongst the Eastern traders.

Lone Star's reactionary tone in the forenoon session was unexplained by any developments of which there was general knowledge. Several hundred shares were offered in the early market and, while it was taken easily, there was a tendency on the part of buyers to lower their bids as the stock came out.

The close was strong. Adams Express dropped 10 points in the final hour, but other shares reflected the swelling of the ranks of operators for the long account, a number of issues rising in a spirited manner. Packard Motor, Corn Products Refining, Kennecott Copper, and Anaconda were among many well-known stocks that surpassed their previous high figures. Total sales approximated 4,500,000 shares.

PROFIT-TAKING WAVE HITS MARKET

NEW YORK, May 14.—(AP.)—Speculation for the advance was resumed on a broad scale in today's stock market. Waves of profit-taking swept through the market at intervals, but the realizing sales were well absorbed. Early gains in the bulk of the industrials ranged from 1 to 5 points, although a few of the volatile specialties were marked up 6 to 16 points. Trading continued at a brisk pace, total sales in the first three hours falling just short of 2,300,000 shares, with the ticker 45 minutes behind the market at 1 p. m.

From the Wall street viewpoint, credit conditions continued satisfactory. Call money unchanged renewed at 5½ per cent, and there appeared to be a plentiful supply of funds available at that figure. Some of the conservative brokerage houses suggested a cautionary trading policy, pending the U. S. Senate's action on the brokers' loan resolution, although little attention was given to this factor by pool operators.

Airplane stocks were again in the forefront of the advance. Curtiss soared 16 points to a new peak at 157⅝, and Wright was marked up 11 points to a new top at 201.

Copper shares responded to the advance from 14¼ to 14¾ cents in the price of the red metal. American Smelting, which has been dormant for some time, crossed 200 for the first time in its history for a week-end gain of 9 points. Kennecott and Calumet and Arizona followed it into new high ground, while Greene Cananea ran up more than 5 points and Federal Mining and Smelting 10.

Radio ran into heavy realizing after establishing a new peak price at 215 and reacted a few points from that level. General Motors held its gain fairly well on buying influenced by the optimistic statement of John J. Raskob, vice president, on his return from Europe last week.

Oils attracted new buying on the reported decrease in gasoline stocks and the announcement of higher gasoline prices in eastern territory. Richfield Oil of California, which is conducting merger negotiations with Pan-American Western, crossed 59 for the first time. Houston and American Republics each climbed about 4 points.

Rails were quiet. Some heaviness developed in Erie on reports that the inclusion of that road in the new Van Sweringen merger would not be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. St. Louis Southwestern common and Great Northern preferred moved into new high ground.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, May 14.—Reports of beneficial rains in the southwest were followed by declines in the cotton market today, with active months selling 42 to 50 points net lower in the forenoon under rather heavy general selling. Trade buying and covering caused small recoveries, but the mid-afternoon market was about 40 to 42 points below Saturday closing figures.

CASH AND CREDIT

BANK CREDIT IS THE BASIS OF A VAST VOLUME OF BUSINESS

Many of the great cash transactions among corporations and individuals are completed through credit obtained at banks. The business of the world would be reduced many times without credit. The national supply of cash would be inadequate to meet the ordinary demands, if credit were not used.

The Farmers Deposit National Bank constantly furnishes its customers millions in credit and other phases of dependable banking.

STEEL ORDERS MODERATE

NEW YORK, May 14—(AP.)—Withdrawals against contracts in the steel market were again large during the last week, but only a moderate volume of new business was reported. Railroads continued to place moderate orders for equipment. Bookings of structural steel by mills in the Eastern territory were smaller, but large individual contracts were reported pending in the street. The daily rate of ingot production for April was the highest on record, and the output for the first quarter of the year also was the largest in the history of the steel industry. Pig iron was unchanged.

Legal Notices 107

SPECIAL NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS,
Office of Treasurer of Allegheny County, Room 107 Court House Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

May 1, 1928.

In pursuance of the 21st section of an "Act relating to Allegheny County," approved the 1st day of May, 1861, and of the amendment to said section, approved the 30th day of March, A. D. 1868, I do hereby give notice that the duplicates for the several wards of the cities of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, boroughs and townships, will be open, and I will be prepared to receive the county, poor, road, bond interest, personal property and park taxes for the year 1928 on May 1st. Said taxes may be paid during the months of May, June and July at 5% discount, during August at face, 10% penalty being added on and after September 1st.

Statements will be furnished promptly upon written request, if given name, location by ward in the cities of Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne or Clairton, or by borough or townships. If statement of Personal Property or Occupation Tax is desired, please give street address also.

Use of the mail is advised for requesting statements and in making payments of taxes. Remittance may be made by bank draft, certified check, or postoffice money order, (payable to John Francies, County Treasurer) accompanied by stamped and addressed envelope for return of tax statement or receipt.

JOHN FRANCIES, County Treasurer.

IN THE COURT OF COMMON PLEAS OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PENNSYLVANIA.
No. 4451 January Term, 1928.

In re petition of the County of Allegheny for the appointment of Viewers to award the damages and assess the benefits occasioned by the taking over and improving as a county road, an existing township road known as Lebanon Church Road, in Mifflin and Jefferson Townships, Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, which road has been widened and improved as a county road and the portions thereof rendered unnecessary or useless thereby vacated.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the Viewers appointed in the above entitled case have prepared a Schedule of damages allowed and benefits assessed, and that they will meet at Room 519, City-County Building, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on the 25th day of May, 1928, at 9:30 o'clock A. NO. 253.

AN ORDINANCE — Granting unto Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, the right to enter upon, use and occupy certain streets and highways in the City of Pittsburgh for the purpose of constructing a connecting curve at the corner of Sixth Avenue and Smithfield street, subject to the terms and conditions herein provided.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That the Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, shall have the right and they are hereby authorized to enter upon, use and occupy for street railway purposes the streets and highways in, on and along the following route, with the right to install, maintain and operate a connecting curve and switches over the said route to connect the existing lines on said streets and highways:

BEGINNING in the inbound track on Sixth avenue at right angles opposite a point in the north or east curb of Sixth avenue, 37 feet more or less, as measured southeastwardly along the said curb line from its intersection with the southerly curb line of Smithfield street; thence northwardly by spiral and circular curve 82 feet to a point of connection with the northbound track on Smithfield street at right angles opposite a point in the south curb of Smithfield street, 27 feet more or less as measured along said curb line from its intersection with the north curb line of Sixth avenue.

Section 2. Pittsburgh Railways Company, its successors, lessees and assigns, shall have the right and they are hereby authorized to construct, maintain, operate and use street railway tracks on the curve hereinbefore mentioned, together with the necessary turnouts and connections, and to operate cars thereon and to use electricity as a motive power, and to erect, maintain and use in the streets and highways hereinbefore mentioned such posts, poles and other supports as said company may deem convenient for, the support and maintenance of an overhead system, for the operation of street railways, subject, however, to the provisions of the Ordinance approved February 25, 1890, entitled "A General Ordinance relating to the entry upon, over or under, or the use of occupation of any street, lane or alley, or any part thereof, for any purpose, by passenger or street railway companies, or by companies operating passenger or street railways and providing reasonable regulations pertaining thereto for the public convenience and safety."

Section 3.—The Company shall furnish clean, sanitary and well-lighted cars, properly heated and ventilated, and shall provide sufficient cars to furnish reasonable service to accommodate the traffic.

Section 4. Pittsburgh Railways Company may assign any of the rights hereinbefore granted to such of the underlying companies operated or to be operated by it as it deems proper, subject to the consent of Council of the City of Pittsburgh, and subject, also to the acceptance by said underlying companies of all the terms and provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 5. The terms of this grant shall be for the period of 50 years from the date of the acceptance hereof.

Section 6. This Ordinance shall be accepted by the Pittsburgh Railways Company within sixty (60) days after its passage or approval by a Certificate of acceptance of all the conditions and provisions thereof. Said Certificate to be executed under the proper seal of the Company, duly attested by the President or Vice President, and the Secretary or an Assistant Secretary thereof, and filed with the Controller of the City.

Section 7. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

NO. 261.

AN ORDINANCE—Granting unto John F. Casey Company, Contractors, their successors and assigns the right to construct, maintain and use a temporary turnout track on Pike Street for a period of 90 days from date of acceptance, located 100' West of 14th Street on the present side track of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; thence northeasterly for a distance of 200' to the property of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for the purpose of conveying materials, etc., in the rebuilding of the 16th Street Produce Yard, property of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Second Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Section 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same. That John F. Casey Company, contractors, their successors and assigns be and are hereby given the right and authority at their own cost and expense to construct, maintain and use a temporary turnout track on Pike street, located 100' West of 14th Street on the present side track of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; thence northeastwardly for a distance of 200' to the property of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Second Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa.

SAID TRACK shall be constructed in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance and in accordance with plan hereto attached and identified as Accession No. B-828, Folder "H," in the files of the Division of Public Utilities, Bureau of Highways and Sewers, Department of Public Works, entitled, "Proposed Temporary Turnout Track on Pike Street for John F. Casey Company, Contractors, Second Ward, Pittsburgh, Pa."

Section 2. The said company, prior to beginning the construction of the said track, shall submit to the Director of the Department of Public Works of the said City a complete set of plans in triplicate showing the location and all details for the construction and maintenance of the said track, said plans and the construction and maintenance of the said track shall be submitted to the approval and supervision of the said Director.

Section 3. The rights and privileges herein granted shall be subject and subordinate to the rights of the City of Pittsburgh and its powers over City streets, and to the Ordinances of the City of Pittsburgh relating thereto and to the provisions of any general Ordinance which may hereafter be passed relating to the construction, maintenance and use of tracks on City streets and compensation for same.

Section 4. The said grantee shall bear the full cost and expense of the repaving and repair of the street pavement, damaged, repair of sewers, water lines and other surface and sub-surface structures which may be in any way damaged or disturbed by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of the said track. All of the said work, including the repaving of the street damaged, shall be done in the manner and at such times as the Director may order, and shall be subject to his approval and supervision.

Section 5. The rights and privileges granted by this Ordinance are granted upon the express condition that the City of Pittsburgh, without liability, reserves the right to cause the removal of the said track upon giving thirty (30) days' notice through the proper officers, pursuant to Resolution, or Ordinance of Council to the said John F. Casey Company, Contractors, their successors and assigns, to that effect; and that the said grantee, when so notified, shall at the expiration of said thirty (30) days, forthwith, remove the said track and replace the street to its original condition, at its own cost and expense.

Section 6. The said grantee shall assume any liability of the City of Pittsburgh for damages to persons or property, including the street and sub-surface structures therein, by reason of the construction, maintenance and use of the said track, and it is a condition of this grant that the City of Pittsburgh assumes no liability to either persons or property on account of this grant.

Section 7.—The foregoing rights and privileges are granted subject to the following condition, to-wit: This Ordinance shall become null and void unless within thirty (30) days after its passage and approval John F. Casey Company, Contractors, shall file with the City Controller its Certificate of Acceptance of the provisions thereof, said Certificate of Acceptance to be executed by the President and Secretary of the Company with its corporate seal attached.

Section 8. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

IF YOU hear of any particularly depressing occurrence, send it to this department. We want to give our readers a good cry.

Today's sad story is contributed by Oscar Fish, who writes as follows:

One time a banker was driving in a reckless manner and ran over a tramp, who was walking along the road.

The banker rushed the tramp to the hospital, and the doctors found that a blood transfusion was necessary to save the tramp's life.

The doctors forced the banker to submit to the transfusion and the poor tramp froze to death.

Rate Cut Helps Mines To Regain Some Markets

Good news for Pittsburgh district coal operators is contained in the announcement that three Northern trunk line railroads have granted a reduction of freight rates to lake ports amounting to 20 cents a ton, effective June 20.

If permitted to stand, the new rate is expected to restore some of the business that Pittsburgh mines have lost through rates favoring Southern railroads, giving the mines of the South entry to markets naturally belonging to Northern mines.

This alleged discrimination has been one of the factors that has caused a great deal of damage to the bituminous districts of this state and Ohio and it has been the cause of bitter controversy for a long time. Pittsburgh has seen its markets vanish, and repeated attempts to remedy the situation have resulted in counter moves by Southern railroads, but it is now thought that, justice of the Pittsburgh claims having been shown, unfair rates will no longer be among troubles of coal men.

It is felt they are in a position to compete for lake port markets on even grounds with Southern operators insofar as carriage is concerned, but the rates to Eastern markets are still held to be unjust to this district.

The public will felicitate the operators in having gained a victory that will be a big help to a crippled industry, and incidentally to the Pittsburgh district. Yet, it will wish that they go a step farther and make peace with their former employes, on strike as a protest against the breaking of their wage agreement.

Safety First

Increase each week end in traffic accidents emphasizes the fact that spring brings a big increase in highway traffic and thereby augments the liability of collisions and other mishaps.

While the greatest measure of care and caution should be exercised in both the operation of vehicles and in crossing streets and roadways throughout the year, there should be extra vigilance during the months when traffic is at its peak.

Rules of the road should be scrupulously observed, traffic signals should be constantly watched and always obeyed. Both car operators and pedestrians should be constantly on the watch for the development of unexpected danger.

The responsibility for public safety is dual in character. Upon each devolves a duty, which if performed in unison and at all times will minimize the danger of accidents—will practically eliminate them. On the rural highways there should be constant observance of every regulation designed to promote public safety.

Safety first is a rule which should never be evaded or modified.

Burying a Baby

Poor Little Princess Hisa

ON THE WAY TO PEACE

This picture, strange to our eyes, shows the funeral of little Princess Hisa, daughter of the Mikado of Japan.

Only 16 months old, the little girl was carried from this world by influenza in the course of a severe epidemic that swept through Japan.

It took victims from the laborer's cottage and the Mikado's palace, sparing none because of rank or power.

Very solemn was the funeral in the great City of Tokio. In the picture you see priests walking in advance of the little body, carried on the shoulders of a dozen powerful men.

CHILDREN PRAYING IN SCHOOL

This picture shows little Japanese children worshiping at a shrine on which stands the portrait of the dead baby in the temple of her imperial ancestors.

Similar scenes were seen in schools all over Japan.

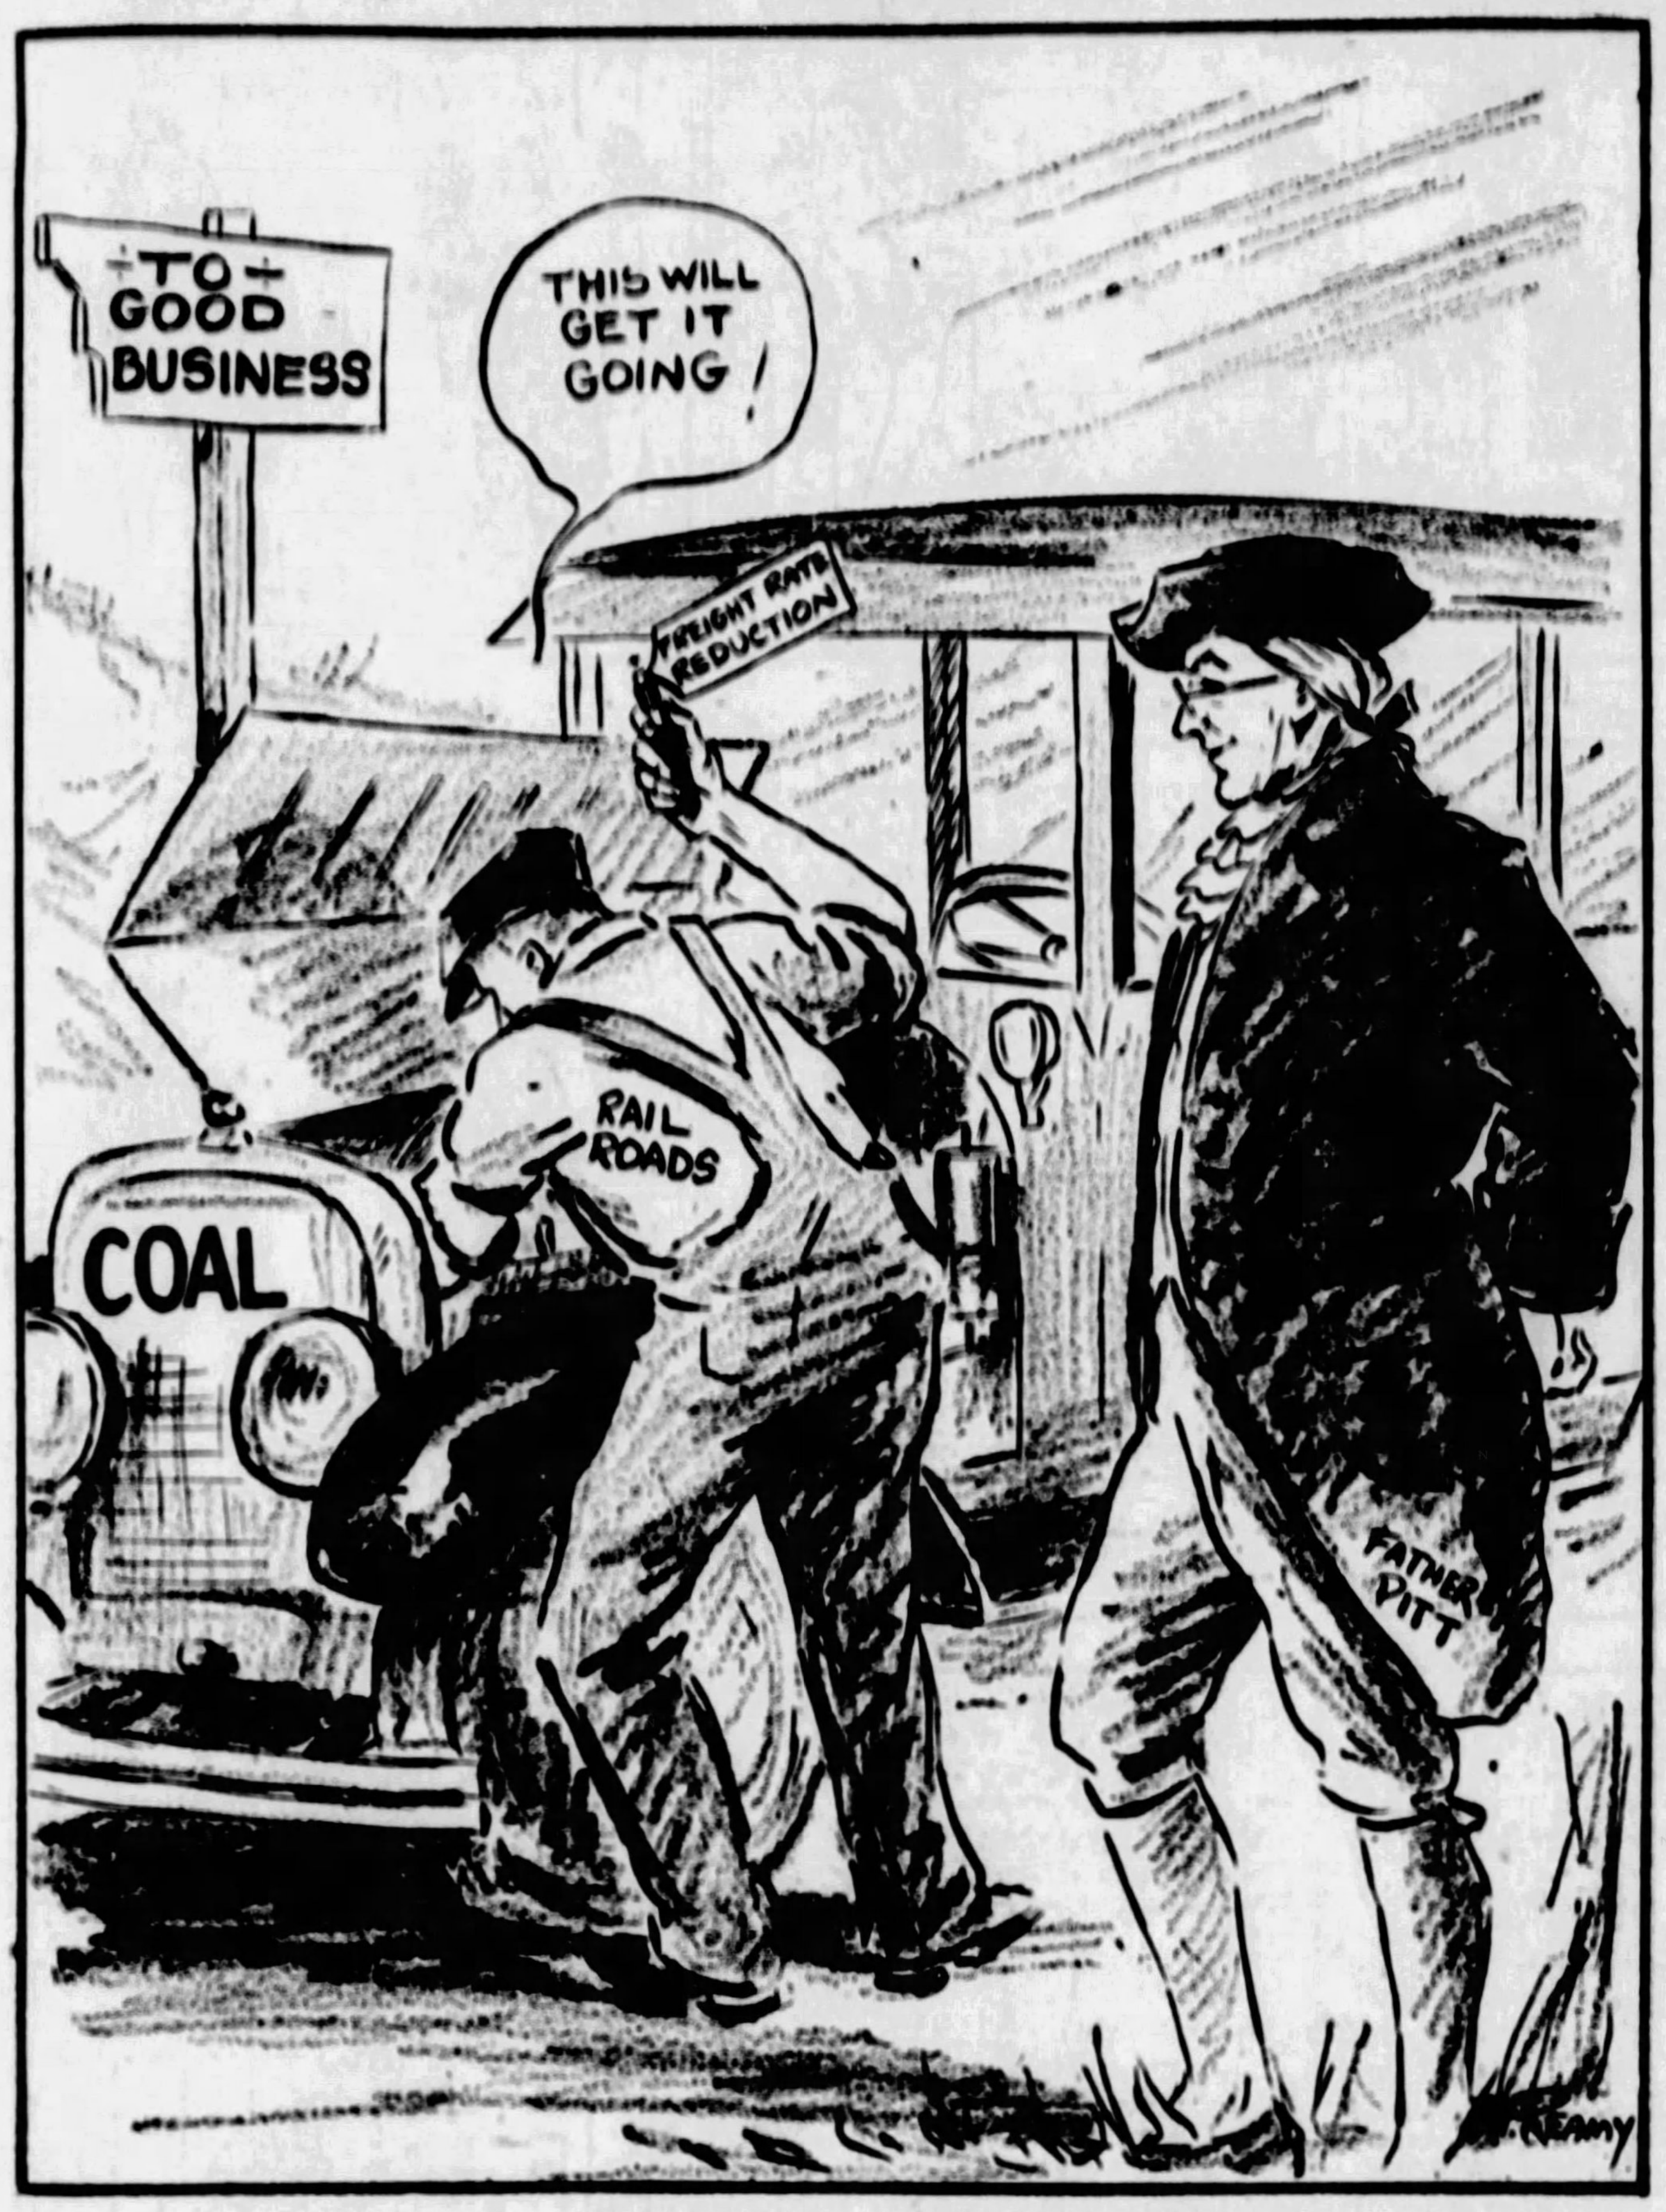
All fathers and mothers will sympathize with the Japanese Mikado and with the child's mother.

There is comfort in the thought that death comes alike to the poor and to the rich, the humble toiler in the rice field and to the ruler of Japan in his splendid palace.

This causes the powerful of all countries to work against disease and to clear up disease germ breeding quarters of the poor, whence disease travels and knocks at the door of the rich.

We are educated by misfortune and made better by it.

JUST WHAT IT NEEDED



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Fourth Dimension

"The question has come up as to what the fourth dimension is, and whether it has any practical use. I would like to know just what is meant by the fourth dimension.—JOHN HAVIARA."

IT IS necessary first to consider what any "dimension" is and why only three "dimensions" are universally recognized. The popular idea of dimension corresponds with that of size. A thing is measured in three ways—as to its length, as to its breadth and as to its thickness. Those three measures, or dimensions, express its size or the space that it occupies.

Now, it is essential to notice that not only does the normal mind readily comprehend these dimensions, but that it is unable to represent to itself, as a reality verifiable through the senses, any other dimensions beyond the three. When these are considered apart from material objects, they are sometimes called, instead of length, breadth and thickness, to-and-fro (or forward-and-back), side-to-side or (right-and-left) and up-and-down. Note that any "sloping" direction is resolvable into two of the fundamental three. Think this over for yourself by trying to "locate" any object suspended in the middle of a room.

But these descriptive definitions plainly show the anthropomorphic origin of the conception of "dimensions." That idea is entirely man-made, and it arises only out of the impression which our senses give us of the world and universe around us. It is, by its nature, limited to the domain of sensual impressions, from which it arises, and in which only it can be realized.

When—as in the case of the so-called fourth dimension—speculative thinkers try to extend this idea beyond its innate limits, they dissipate it into mental fog abounding with deceptive and distorted shapes. Mathematical formulae that are not developed from verifiable facts of experience are notoriously only mental play. Mere self-consistence gives them no practical value. They are of no use outside their own ideal world.

"Pure mathematics" would have done much better by ignoring the notion of dimensions entirely, or recognizing that within its realm there is no such thing as what we in our limited human world call dimensions. Then there would have been less confusion, and everybody would have understood why when time is called a fourth dimension no meaning is conveyed to the normal mind (we are unable to visualize a fourth dimension), because it is purely a mathematical conception and not a matter of ordinary human experience. It forms a basis for the Einsteinian speculation about the cause, or nature, of gravitation, and for the view that the universe is at the same time finite and unlimited, the "space-time continuum" having an innate curvature, which varies in the neighborhood of massive bodies.

As we have seen, the three well-known dimensions arise from our experience, and consequently are readily understood, and an attempt is often made to show that our experience also teaches us that time is combined with space, thus making the world four-fold instead of only three-fold. For instance, I quote the following from a little book of my own on "Relativity:"

Suppose I put on a paper two dots? They represent two separate points in ordinary space. Then I draw a straight line from one dot to the other. The number of seconds occupied by the pencil in going from one to the other represents the distance in time between the points. Now, if I think of the motion of the pencil as performed simultaneously in both space and time (as of course it really is) I perceive that the separation between the points is made up of both space and time, each equally indispensable. This separation is called in the Einstein theory an "interval," and the crossing of the space line and the time line is called an "event," or a "point-event." All the history of the world and of individuals is made up of these intersections, the time dimension with the space dimension.

But, though this may appear simple enough, when you go deeply into the subject you will find yourself afloat in a sea of ultra-mathematics, with no shore of "common sense" in sight.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

Offenses ought to be pardoned, for few offend willingly, but as they are compelled by some affection. —Hegesippus.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Your Successes

WHEN you were young you had few advantages.

You may have done fairly well since, in accumulating property and other valuable possessions.

But if you have not been successful, it is easy for you to blame the fact on your poor start.

And if you have been successful do you think how much more you might have done if you had had the early preparation some have had for life's work.

Perhaps the reason for your success, big or little, rests in the very fact that you have had to work so hard to get along.

You can think of some of your early boyhood friends whose opportunities were better than yours, but they have not kept apace with you.

Possibly, if you had found it easy to travel along with them, you would never have advanced beyond them.

Adversity started you to work and work hard.

It was good for you and if, in the face of adversity, you have made something of yourself, be thankful that your efforts were blessed—don't complain.

The struggles you had were probably needed to bring out the best in you.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Mother's Day

THE earth with love is all alight,
Its flowers more fair, its skies more bright
Than words portray;
The sunlight shows its rarest gold
And sweetest violets unfold
On Mother's Day.

Yet, through this loveliness that glows
In sunny field and budding rose,
Soft voices say:
"These can but faintly show one phase
Of that enduring bloom we praise
On Mother's Day!"

Words of the Wise

Genius is mainly an affair of energy.—Arnold.

Almost all human life turns on probabilities.—Voltaire.

Severity breedeth fear, but roughness breedeth hate.—Bacon.

There is no dependence that can be sure but a dependence upon one's self.—Gay.

Truth lies within a little and certain compass, but error is immense.—Bolingbroke.

Every man, however humble his station or feeble his powers, exercises some influence on those who are about him for good or evil.—Sedgwick.

Above all be always master of your own secrets. Who tells another's secrets ought to be regarded as a traitor; who tells his own passes here for a fool.—Voltaire.

Tales that are Told

A Family Failing

DORMER was an unpunctual individual. Try as he might, he could seldom arrive at the office in time. In the end his employer felt bound to administer a reprimand.

Apparently this had the desired result, for Dormer was early with amazing regularity.

The kindly employer, always ready to encourage his staff, congratulated Dormer on turning over a new leaf, and inquired as to how it had been done.

"Well, sir," said Dormer, who had a grown-up daughter, "I have arranged for my little girl to call me when she comes in at night."

Used Her Privilege

A BANK CLERK received an unexpected increase in his salary. At the close of the afternoon's work he rushed over to the nearest postoffice and sent a telegram to the girl of his choice.

"Angel," ran the wire, "will you marry me?"

A reply of 12 words had been prepaid, and the clerk sped swiftly home to await the answer. His suspense was brief, and eagerly he tore open the buff-colored envelope.

"Yes," began the message, after the address, "yes, gladly, willingly, joyfully, gratefully, lovingly."—London Answers.

Salesmanship

THE shop was crowded with customers all trying to get served at once.

An eagle-eyed shopwalker noticed that one youthful assistant appeared to be spending a great deal of time over a young and pretty customer.

The young lady in question had not bought anything, although she had been looking at various articles for over half an hour.

"Doesn't that girl know what she wants?" asked the shopwalker, drawing the assistant aside.

"She does, sir," replied the youth smartly, "but I'm doing my best to sell her something else."

Misunderstood

BERYL was to spend the afternoon at her aunt's house. There would be a tea-party, and so Beryl, who was very partial to tea-parties, was eager for dinner-time to come round.

In her anxiety to help the morning pass by she caused her mother considerable annoyance.

"Beryl," said her mother at last, "didn't you promise to be a good girl?"

"I did," admitted the child somewhat reluctantly, "but I don't have to begin until I get to auntie's, do I?"

Her Point of View

JOSEPH BULL, M. P., was determined to wake up his constituency. In particular he resolved to tackle a certain baronet's wife who, though she might have been a power for good in the district, preferred auction bridge to deeds of charity.

"Doubtless, Lady Blankspace," he said, when he called upon her one afternoon, "you have noticed the time that is wasted at bridge parties."

Lady Blankspace agreed heartily.

"You're right," she said. "Some people take years to shuffle and deal, don't they?"—London Answers.

Frigid

IN A well-known club an explorer, who had but recently returned from one of his many travels into the land of ice and snow, was recounting some of his adventures.

"Was it very cold?" asked a listener. He was the sort of man who would ask a question like that.

"Cold—was it cold?" repeated the explorer, scornfully. "Why, it was so cold that I couldn't blow the candle out. The flame had frozen stiff and I had to break it off!"

Education by Air

GREAT BRITAIN'S campaign of education by radio will really start when moving pictures go over the radio. The greatest educational force in the world will be moving pictures, conveying swiftly information that lasts.

William Fox deserves praise for his work on educational films. Shown recently, in rural and city schools, the effect of such films on the children, increasing and creating earnest desire for knowledge, is marvelous.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 14.—Diary of a modern Pepys: At my typewriter and came a fellow I know but slightly to look over my shoulder. When I removed a sheet he picked it up, inquiring, "Do you mind?" and began to read. When I replied I did very much, he seemed nettled.

So through the town and saw among others afoot Count Max de Polignac, Al Woods, Harry Acton and Theodore, the head waiter. And it appeared in several blocks in the Forties that every other place was an unlicensed pub, so many staggering from this door and that as though befuddled.

In the evening to dinner with Peggy Hoyt and Aubrey Eads and later to the pier to see a barque sail at midnight, and with my wife stopped in to see Henry L. Doherty at his roof bungalow, but no one home. Then walked through Battery Park, very beautiful in the moonlight.

Of all foreigners arriving in New York, those who most readily learn English are the Russians. They acquire a working knowledge in a few weeks and several months later speak it fluently. Russians, being adept linguists, are able to pick up any language and in a short time make it hum. They are the only people to speak Chinese and Japanese successfully. Their own language is so complicated, all others are comparatively a snap.

Within the year, the sweep of Modernist furniture has confronted critics. The hold it has taken here and abroad has been astonishing. The newest homes and the newest offices are now equipped in this style. Old furniture is going where many think it should have gone long ago—to the scrap heap. The world no longer believes art must be a century old to be worthwhile.

Perhaps the greatest impetus was given the movement with the launching of the liner Ile de France, which is Modernistic throughout. The modern hoop-la in decoration has a sparkling appeal, a Venetian luster, and what is highly important there is more comfort in the furnishings.

The most striking atelier in New York is in the new manner. The front is of solid glass, both clear and frosted, and the furniture is metal painted silver and pink with walls of radiant mirrors. The surface indications are that of a shiny silk hat.

The Modernistic idea is thoroughly revolutionary and bears no resemblance to another period. The idea came like the radio—all of a sudden. The lighting is indirect, usually hidden in bowls and vases and can be changed from a soft glow to a blinding dazzle. Department stores now exhibit Modernistic furniture. It is machine made beauty in a machine age and rings the bell.

A rich young bachelor has a Park avenue apartment in the modernistic mode throughout. Floors are carpeted in a creamy gray. Not a lighting ornament is visible, yet the apartment can be flooded to ballroom gaiety or toned down to a boudoir hue. The walls of one room—he calls it the Gilda Gray—are of pressed split straw of various colorings and designed as waving palm trees. The walls of another are of egg shells dipped into some shiny solution giving it an odd crackly surface. The beds have swirling plume-like headboards, purple, green and brilliant red. Tables have mirror tops that flash and sparkle. The chairs are covered with pigskin, deep and comfortable, which is more than can be said of the ram-roddish early American or Louis XV. The entire effect blends nicely with the modern idea of architecture, music, dress and other thus-and-sos.

An average of five apparently respectable and thoroughly domesticated husbands walk from the family fireside every week in New York and are rarely seen again. Marry and see the world!

A French couturier observes New York women know only how to make their feet and legs look neat and above the knees they are a sight. In other words—keep the engine going, Parkins, for a quick getaway—beauty is only knee deep.

The Bulwark of Goodness

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The bulwark of goodness is habit.

The best presumption that you will do good is not a strong resolution or a sudden conversion, nor a great emotion. It is the fact that you always have been good.

Habits are usually spoken of in a derogatory sense. We talk of bad habits, and a victim of habit, and so on. When we say habit we think of the habit of drinking, or smoking, of gambling and the like.

It is true that many pursue the downward path because they have fallen into bad habits, but we overlook the fact that many keep the upward path merely because they have formed good habits. Habit simply means that you have done a thing so long or so often that you unconsciously do it. It does itself, so to speak.

Habit is accumulation of character behind a given deed, and it is the best assurance that that deed will be performed in a certain way.

In crossing the street you perform a thousand motions and make a thousand decisions, yet all the while your mind is busy over what you will have for dinner. Matters vital to your life are decided quickly and unconsciously from force of habit. You dodge automobiles, obey traffic signals, avoid running into foot passengers, tip your hat to a lady, watch your step at the curb and do 40 other little things that you ought to do, smoothly and without thinking. Habit takes you through untold dangers while your mind is busy elsewhere.

When the Master said that a certain man's house was founded on a rock he indicated the nature of that rock. It was that the man had kept His sayings all his life. That man's house is not founded on a rock who is converted or who makes a good resolution or who has a strong emotion, but it is that man who has been in the habit of doing right. He is the most firmly fixed and the safest.

We should avoid bad habits in their incipiency, therefore, but that should not blind us to the necessity of forming good habits. They are our best friends.

You have to keep a resolution, but a habit keeps you.

We sometimes say that such and such a one deserves no credit for doing good. It is all a matter of habit. He just does good from force of habit. We forget that that is the very best reason for thinking that one will always do good. We are surest that a man will not drink and that he will be kind to his mother if he never has drunk and always has been kind to his mother.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

New Notions—Why Not?

MR. AND MRS. EDWARDS are all worked up about our high schools. Look what good little girls Anne and Rose were before they went to high school. Obedient and respectful—never made a bit of trouble for mother and father. And now they're so changed you'd hardly know them.

Always arguing whenever they're told to do anything—

Always finding fault with everything around the house—criticizing the cooking and furniture and even the way Ma 'n' Pa act. Yesterday Anne actually told her mother that she ought to be ashamed to eat so much and not take exercises! They're always asking questions, too—smarty questions that they know perfectly well their parents can't answer, about new books and current events. It's enough to make any self-respecting parent see red.

"That's what our high schools do to our youngsters!" say Mr. and Mrs. Edwards, bitterly. And thousands of indignant parents join the chorus.

They're wrong! High school doesn't do this to young people. LIFE DOES THIS TO YOUNG PEOPLE.

Life puts "new notions" into young people's heads at 16 and 18 as surely as it puts new tissues in their bodies—life lights rebellions in their adolescent hearts and stirs them to questioning and criticism.

And we'd be in a fine fix if it didn't!

How long would the human race continue to advance if the Younger Generation didn't criticize and rebel against old methods?

Most parents would be doddering at 40 if the youngsters didn't raise Cain with their comfort and complacency.

It's a hard dose for Ma and Pa to take, but if they're intelligent, they'll welcome the readjustment, for their own sake as well as for their children's.

ANYONE WHO HAS BEEN A PARENT FOR 16 YEARS NEEDS A CHANGE OF VIEWPOINT AND A COMPLETE MENTAL OVERHAULING.

Family life is constantly threatened with "hardening of the arteries." Homes, as well as people, can be dead and not know it. And there's nothing lovely or inspiring about an atrophied home. It's as dangerous and repulsive as any other carrion.

The greatest gift which high school gives a child is that very set of "new motions" which works such havoc with sluggish family life.

Think of that when your youngster next gives you a scornful "once over" and asks you why you don't snap out of it and keep up with the times. Don't flare up and punish her for impertinence. Don't spill big tears of self pity and call her an ungrateful kid. THANK HER FOR HER INTEREST — AND THEN GO OUT AND FOLLOW HER ADVICE.
